Russia's Secret Radio. Britain's Happy Family. Capper's Silver Dollar. He Wanted a Mortgage.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

REBELLIONS, sullen half-mutiny, in their navy made the British feel that the national ship was sinking. It is unwise to offend army, navy or police for all three can strike back.

THE AMERICAN BAR Association denouncing prohibition and urging modification of the Sherman law are wise. Prohibition encourages crime, the Sherman act discourages business.

NEW YORK'S POLICE know that Russia has on Manhattan Island a secret radio plant. Messages have been intercepted and sent to Washington to be decoded. Translating Russian is hard enough. Decoding it must be very difficult. Detectives suspect that a message to Stalin reading something like ug ras loublou may mean "down with capitalism ingrate."

MUSSOLINI is expected to visit the Pope today. If he does it will be the first time an Italian Premier has entered the Vatican in more than 60 years.

It is announced that Mussolini will dismiss an important official to whom the Pope objects and the latter will dismiss from his post one to whom Mussolini objects. But harmony is not complete.

YOU SAW the "happy family" at the circus—cat, dog, white rat and rabbit all in one cage. In the British cabinet is a stranger mixture—Socialist-Labor, Toryism, Conservative, Liberalism—all sitting and governing side by side. It is like that picture of the flood with savage animals floating down stream together all too frightened to fight. And most strange, British bankers demand that MacDonald, Socialist - Labor man, shall remain at the head of the government for at least two years more. "Don't disturb the patient" is their advice.

PRESENT CONDITIONS will make "real estaters" appreciate Mr. B. Forman's story about a colored gentleman who bought a house and at last made his final payment. The seller said:

"That's fine, now I shall give you a deed to the property."

But that was not the buyer's idea. He said:

"No, boss, I don't want a deed, I want a mortgage. A friend of mine had a mortgage and he got the house and he is living in it now. I have no use for a deed."

THERE IS NO good time to buy real estate or stocks if you don't know WHAT to buy. But this is the best possible time to buy real estate or stocks IF YOU DO know what to buy.

SENATOR CAPPER, of Kansas, in his Capper's Magazine, tells of a newspaper reporter "who offered to each of eight men a good silver dollar for 60 cents and found no takers." You couldn't fool those eight men if you offered a dollar for 60 cents—it must be a counterfeit without another look.

SENATOR CAPPER remarked that the eight men could easily have been persuaded to buy some worthless oil stock, mining stock or "business corner lot deep under water." Many of our sorrows are based on the German saying "Gegen dummheit kaempfen goetter selbst vergebens"—"Against stupidity the gods themselves fight in vain."

MR. GERARD SWOPE, who proposed a carefully thought out plan to improve industrial conditions and stabilize employment, has had several surprises and will have more. He learns that Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, knows more about industry than Mr. Swope knows. Swope wouldn't tell Brookhart how to run Iowa politics, but Brookhart can and does tell Swope how to run industry off hand without thinking about it for five minutes. THAT IS GENIUS. Gen. Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania Railroad, employing tens of thousands of workers, indorses Mr. Swope's suggestions and will co-operate.

THOSE WITH modest incomes enough to live simply should have in mind the possibilities of California. This is said with thorough knowledge of the attractions and opportunities of older territory in which the writer lives. At present in California you can buy chickens for 65 cents apiece—NOT SIXTY-FIVE CENTS A POUND. You buy turkeys for $2.50 each and fruit for so little you can hardly believe it. For instance, a half bushel of oranges for 25 cents. Eggs are cheap. You can live all year round without heating your house. Rents are low, but don't go to California looking for work. Go only if you can take enough money with you to live decently.

FIVE SAVED IN BOMBING OF CAFE

Police Carry Homewood Families to Safety; Building Front Ruined

Explosion of a bomb early today wrecked the interior of a restaurant on the first floor of a three story brick building at 802 North Homewood avenue and endangered the lives of two families living in an apartment on the third floor.

Further damage to the building was prevented when E. D. Hardy, a special policeman, attracted to the scene by the explosion, found another bomb, the fuse of which was burning, and stamped out the fire.

Hardy and Patrolmen Charles Rosenson and Thomas Patton, who arrived a short time after him, carried three children and two women from their living quarters on the third floor. They were Mrs. Bertha Alexopplis, her three children, George, 12; Mary, 9, and William, 7, and Mrs. James Pangalos. Pangalos left the building unassisted.

The force of the blast blew out the front of the restaurant and did considerable damage to the interior.

Firemen said the damage would amount to about $500.

WOMAN IN AUTO SHOT TO DEATH

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—A woman identified as Lillian R. Wager, 33, of 400 Elmwood avenue, Buffalo, was shot to death in an automobile at Port Allegany, near here, early today.

O. Felber, also of Buffalo, driver of the machine, was held for questioning. Felber said the woman was lying in the rear seat and that he heard her scream:

"Something terrible has happened."

He stopped his machine, he said, and when he reached the woman's side, she was dead.

A physician who examined the body a few minutes later said death probably was due to heart disease but after the body was removed to the Coroner's office, Deputy Coroner John Seltz announced he had found a .38-caliber revolver bullet in her back. A bullet hole also was found in the back of the car.

Felber said he heard no shot. The two were en route to Buffalo from Washington, D. C., Felber asserted.

FLEET OF TRUCKS IN COURTHOUSE QUADRANGLE TODAY, READY TO START OUT TO BRING IN EVERY COUNTY BALLOT BOX

Judge Jails Witness As Park Sifts Fraud

Investigation Quickly Follows Estep's Claim Of Nomination for Armstrong; Braddock, Homestead and South Side Officials Are Ordered to Bring Tally Sheets..

By MARK SHIELDS

The searchlight of the September grand jury, following an all-night session, continued today to seek evidences of fraud at Tuesday's hectic primaries which resulted in Joseph G. Armstrong disputing the apparent victory of his fellow County Commissioner, Charles C. McGovern.

Three hundred election officers, chiefly in Braddock, Homestead and the Hill, and South Side districts, strong Armstrong territory, had been summoned before the grand jury. All were instructed to bring tally sheets.

Of these, 50 had been interrogated over night. One, Edward Hood, 25, majority inspector of the First District, First Ward, Homestead, was committed to jail for contempt of court by Judge James H. Gray when he was reported to have made impertinent answers.

Judge Orders Every Ballot Box Seized

A blanket order for the impounding of every ballot box in Allegheny County, not already impounded, was issued in Common Pleas Court today by Judge Elder W. Marshall. No voting machines are to be impounded, it was said.

Delivery of the boxes into the custody of Sheriff Robert H. Cain was delayed, however, while more than 500 copies of the order were being prepared for service upon the custodians of the boxes. A fleet of 15 automobile trucks was held in readiness to bring the boxes to the Courthouse, where they will be kept under heavy guard.

The boxes were impounded at the instance of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, charged by Commissioner Charles C. McGovern with attempting to steal from him one of the Commissioner nominations in Tuesday's Republican primary.

ARMSTRONG ASKS RECOUNTS

Of the 108 boxes already impounded all but 10 were brought in during the night and were stored in vaults in the Sheriff's office.

Five of the boxes, four from the First Ward and one from the Third Ward of McKees Rocks, were either without locks or had their seals broken. Deputy sheriffs were unable to say whether this condition was evidence of carelessness or tampering.

Simultaneous with the impounding petition, petitions asking recount of the boxes in the Second, Sixth and Eighth districts of the Twenty-first Ward were to be filed. Armstrong is asking this under the

CLUNK IN VOTE MACHINE QUIZ

More than a score of election board officials of voting districts, where machines were used Tuesday, were being questioned in District Attorney Andrew T. Park's office today by Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk.

The officials had been subpenaed.

They were being examined by Clunk as to the operation of the machines during Tuesday's primary election. The issuance of the subpenaes for these officials gave rise to the belief that they were to go before the grand jury. This was denied by Attorney Clunk, who said he merely desired to question them. Other developments were:

1—The Citizens' Voting Machine Committee promised Clunk to hand over records it secured election day when 100 watchers checked the machines.

2—S. Proctor Brady, president of the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, makers of the machines, in a statement directed at the committee, charged that some of its members were prejudiced for the benefit of a competitor, and if legal evidence is sufficient, threatened damage suits.

CLOONAN DENIES WRIT

Gilbert C. Cloonan, chief of the County Bureau of Elections, sought all last night in vain by county detectives, was at the court house this morning and said he had not been served with a subpena. The subpenas of some of the election officers bore the notation "Voting Machine." These had been summoned in connection with the the inquiry into charges that voting machines had been tampered with. They were questioned by Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk and were not taken before the Grand Jury.

Seventy-five volunteer workers for the Registration Board supplemented efforts of the county detectives in rounding up election boards and bringing them to the Courthouse. Twenty-five other volunteers guarded the Courthouse.

Weary from their night-long investigation, members of the grand jury recessed at 6 a. m. and went to the Pittsburgher Hotel for sleep until 11 a. m.

OFFICIALS TAKE REST

An hour later Judge Gray, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who held over the jury for the primary probe, Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren and their aides took time out for a few hours' rest before resuming the probe.

The investigation followed rapidly on the heels of the furore created by announcement yesterday through Congressman Harry A. Estep that an official count by Armstrong headquarters showed the veteran political dictator the winner over McGovern by about 4,000 votes.

Unofficial tabulations showed McGovern the winner of the second place nomination on the Republican ticket by nearly 2,500

Lindys Hop Sea to China, Disappoint Welcomers

NANKING, China, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here today from Fukuoka, Japan, for a four-day stay, but because the Colonel was not satisfied with the place officials had picked for him to land, Nanking's reception was somewhat delayed.

The flying vacationists, after circling several times over the flooded Yangtse River, finally alighted on Lotus Lake, just outside Nanking.

City dignitaries, however, had arranged for him to land on the waterfront, where they had constructed a special wharf and had several platoons of soldiers and some refreshments on hand.

The dignitaries, including Foreign Minister Wang, Consul Gen. and Mrs. Peck, and Gen. Hung, of the Aviation Bureau, waited on the wharf. Shortly after three o'clock an Army plane, which had escorted the Lindberghs, flew over and signaled them that the Americans had landed on Lotus Lake.

Armstrong Accuses Kline Of 'Knifing and Cheating'

Visibly downcast, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, during a visit to the Sheriff's office early last night, launched an unprovoked verbal attack on Mayor Charles H. Kline. Armstrong accused the Mayor of "knifing" and "cheating" him.

Armstrong visited the Sheriff's office at 7:30, saying he had come:

"Just to look around and see how things were going."

Then followed the verbal lashing, addressed to the crowded Sheriff's office.

The Commissioner appeared later in the evening, calmer and more composed.

State Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., son of the Commissioner, was also a visitor during the night. He made no comment however.

Gaynan was further asked if the figures on the return sheets were as delivered by Election Board officials.

They appeared to sense a changed atmosphere from the days preceding Tuesday, when Armstrong was czar in the Courthouse.

POLITICIANS ASTOUNDED

Admittedly the drama ... unexpected action of Park ... caused a tremor to run through Pittsburgh and Allegheny County politics. The District Attorney, who had promised that if nominated last Tuesday he would make a thorough investigation of any charges of election ... was evidently making good ... some Allegheny County politicians accustomed to getting away with what they wished were astast.

Senator James J. Coyne, defeated in the race for Commissioner, was understood to have proffered his services to McGovern in the latter's effort to retain the nomination. News of this development, together with the activity of the District Attorney, convinced political observers that war to the knife had been declared between the Kline-Coyne city organization and Armstrong.

MELLON REBUFFED

Coyne and Kline expected to co-operation from McGovern ... should be land in the Commissioner's office, but they were insistent that Armstrong should not remain in power. The differences within the "regular organization" forecast a complete crumbling of old political lines with the effort of W. L. Mellon to pour oil on the troubled waters repulsed at every point.

The Armstrong followers were more bitter at Coyne than they were at McGovern.

Knots of Armstrong followers stood about on the first floor and discussed the situation, talking vaguely and self-righteously of thugs in the camps of other political leaders.

PARK DEMANDS ACTION

Meanwhile, Park on the third floor, eager to get the facts of minority inspectors from a safe in the County Treasurer's office, threatened to "blow that damned vault open myself if they don't get some one to open it soon."

Forcible action became unnecessary when County Treasurer Frencier was found at his home and hurried to the Courthouse to make the lists available to the District Attorney.

Service of subpenas immediately began. As county detectives left the Courthouse trucks tumbled up to the building bearing ballot boxes which had been impounded on court order at the petition of attorneys acting for McGovern.

McGovern furnished Park and Judge Gray with a list of election districts in which he claimed to have been defrauded of votes or in which the returns as they appeared in the Bureau of Elections differed in figures from those collected by newspapers and political headquarters on election night and Wednesday. A discrepancy of 5,000 votes unfavorable to McGovern was claimed by his associates.

RETURNS TO BE CHECKED

Preparations were begun immediately to compare the unofficial returns with the bureau sheets and to size those against the figures in the hands of the minority inspectors. It was also planned to open boxes from suspected districts and compare the votes on the sheets deposited with their seals with those in the hands of Chapman and his aide.

If the totals did not agree, Park said, it would be apparent that some one had trifled with the sheets and the guilty persons would be sought out and indicted. Park in his petition to the court declared there was a "pressing necessity for ascertaining the

ARMSTRONG STOICAL

The elder Armstrong appeared unperturbed by the activity on the third floor of the building he has ruled almost without challenge for the last eight years.

James E. Rowley, chief clerk to the commissioners, Armstrong appointee, sat in the big room outside the private offices of the commissioners and joked with reporters. It was not Rowley's desire that the doors to the Courthouse had been barred and guarded for the first time in eight years that the Ross street entrance has been so patrolled.

Paul Rowley answering a question:

"We're going back to the old way of doing things here. There have been too many bums wandering in and out of the building. We don't want any trouble like last night."

Rowley was referring to the episode that took place when riot policemen arrested 75 men believed followers of Armstrong after another group said by Armstrong men to have been their enemies had dispersed.

Searched by the police, it was alleged that small cans of a dark powder had been found on some of those arrested. Placed in a ballot box, this powder is alleged to be subject to chemical reaction from lack of air which results in charring the ballots. If a box should be opened in a search for fraud, nothing would be disclosed but blackened paper.

In contrast to the patrol of Armstrong police within the Courthouse, city policemen were on duty at the Fifth avenue automobile entrance to the county building. They permitted freedom of entry, but attempts to gain admittance at the ground-level doors on side Grant and were refused by county policemen with the admonition:

"Go to the Ross street entrance."

Those who sought admittance there were examined through a peephole in a huge yellow wooden door, the squared opening framing the apertures through which peaked eyes looking for I am told, examine prospective visitors.

Judge Gray Orders Full, Speedy Probe

Judge James H. Gray charging the grand jury last night as it battled investigation of vote-stealing and fraud charges in Tuesday's election said in part:

"The District Attorney of Allegheny County, Andrew T. Park, has petitioned the court to submit to you some extraordinary matters relating to the primaries election just taken place and I have made an order authorizing the submission of those matters to you.

"Now this business relates to the returns of the election. It is alleged that some election officers have failed to make proper returns and I submit to you the authority to make an inquiry.

"It is of the highest importance that the matter should be inquired into thoroughly and as speedily as possible.

"Do not hesitate to sift the evidence thoroughly and completely.

"Follow every possible line of inquiry that comes before you and when you are satisfied you have all the facts available or possible make your presentment to the court."

OFFICIAL COUNT GIVES 428 GAIN TO M'GOVERN

Gets Added Margin Over Armstrong, Who Profited By Early Returns' Errors

The returning board, making official compilations of Tuesday's vote totals, started the second day of its task today, with County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern already 428 votes to the good as the result of its first day's labor.

No changes were found in the official returns tabulated today as against the unofficial figures.

Differences from the unofficial tabulations gave McGovern the new advantage over County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, veteran warhorse of the Republican "organization" who, on the face of the unofficial but reliable returns, trailed McGovern by 2,479 votes.

ARMSTRONG LOSSES

In the First District of the First Ward, McGovern gained 86 votes while Armstrong lost 142 in the official count. In the Fourth District of the same Ward, Armstrong lost an even 100 as the Returning Board found a voting machine's total of 318 should be 218.

In Aspinwall, the Returning Board discovered McGovern's vote in the First Ward was 21, instead of 117 as recorded in the first returns.

McGovern followers claimed the ballot box of the First District of Aspinwall Borough had been tampered with when the tally sheet presented to the return board showed they said, 50 less votes for their candidate than the one posted outside the polling place election night.

Congressman Harry A. Estep, Armstrong's campaign manager, yesterday claimed and repeated the claim last midnight that the official count would show his candidate winner by 4,000 votes, despite McGovern's lead in the unofficial tabulations.

MANSFIELD'S UNCHANGED

The standing of State Senator W. D. Mansfield who took first place, leading McGovern and Armstrong by approximately 40,000 votes was unchanged by the early official compilations. Recount board returns today showed:

FIRST WARD

TERESA SPANO, 2 . . . HER DADDY WAS WOUNDED 60 TIMES!

Teresa, one of the two children of Nick Spano, proprietor of Green Gables Inn, Lincoln highway, Imperial, the man "put on the spot" and taken to a hospital with 60 shotgun slugs in his body. Detectives say the reason was "bad checks" he gave to bootleggers.

GANG'S VICTIM KEEPS SILENCE

Seriously wounded by gangsters because of bad checks he had given them, according to county detectives, Nick Spano, 28, roadhouse proprietor of Imperial, was still in a serious condition in Mercy Hospital today while authorities continued their search for the gunmen.

Last night, efforts to trace Spano after he left his home before he was felled with 60 buckshot slugs proved futile, it was said. Detectives also said they were still searching for men to whom Spano had given the worthless checks.

Spano's wife, Rose, and Virgil Columbo, a roomer in the Spano home together with Harry Jacobs of Webster avenue, arrested for questioning, were released on bail by Capt. Harry Mellon of the Downtown police district pending a complete investigation.

that some of the members of the citizens' committee, from the start, acted in a prejudicial manner toward the Poole Engineering and Machine Company and for the benefit of a competitor that had enjoyed a monopoly in the voting machine field."

Asserting the machines were in perfect order when sent into the election districts, tested by engineers in the presence of Leo Rearon, representative of C. C. McGovern, he maintained the machines were operated successfully in the first four wards of Pittsburgh, with the exception of minor trouble.

He pointed to the success of the concern's machines in Schuylkill County. The machines in Northumberland County, made by his company, performed well except at the start, when he blamed inexperienced election officials for some difficulties.

He pointed to the alleged failure of machines recommended by the Citizens' Committee in Philadelphia, Somerset, Crawford and Luzerne counties, adding:

"Our legal counsel has been instructed to take steps to hold the members of this committee individually responsible for the untruths circulated in this vicious statement, and if sufficient grounds are available, damage suits will be entered against the individual members of these committees."

Prosecutor Clunk, in charge, expects to hear from the judges of elections of the McKeesport, Clairton Duquesne, why the vote machines were not used in the Tuesday primary.

"BREAKDOWNS" PROBED

Election judges of the Fourth Ward are to report concerning 19 voting machine handles that "broke."

The information secured by the Voting Machine Committee was promised Clunk by Attorney Ella Grauhart, a member of its legal committee.

Clunk, placed in charge of the investigation by District Attorney Park, conferred with Miss Grauhart last night, after hearing the story of W. H. Sunderman county employe under George Schad, Jr., who, it was said, checked up on some of the machines which alleged repairmen were charged with putting out of disorder.

A search for "I. Punk," mysterious missing man in the tampering charges, is still on. He has not as yet been found, officials said.

Hiram D. Hirsh and W. L. Gladstone, representing the Poole Company, who yesterday gave statements to the Assistant District Attorney, also exhibited one of the machines yesterday to Clunk, Attorney Lois McBride, of the Citizens committee, county detectives and others. They turned over to Clunk 19 handles of machines used in the Fourth Ward. These machines, Hirsh said, had been disabled by filing clutch pins on the handles.

Both the Citizens committee, headed by Senator Frank J. Harris, and the District Attorney's office are to investigate the machines' performance and the causes of their locking and jamming.

One cause advanced for locking the machines was that the sheet, when pulled off, causes automatic locking of the machine—this to prevent "peeping" during the day, before the complete figures are ready.

act of 1927 providing for posting of $50 for recount. This is the same act under which hundreds of election boards were convicted of election fraud in the 1928 election.

Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Frank, on behalf of Commissioner McGovern, yesterday filed a blanket petition for the impoundment of 167 boxes. These were in the custody of the Sheriff last night.

Fifteen county trucks will be ready in the Courthouse yard this morning. As soon as the court order is issued they will dash to the various Aldermen's and Justices' of the Peace offices in the 932 election districts where ballot boxes are stored.

The law enforcement tidal wave that has hit the Courthouse brought another development late yesterday, when 40 additional warrants for the Registration Commissioners were sworn out in the office of Alderman A. W. Headley. Bond of $500 is being required in each case. The informations charge the four members of the Registration Commission—John K. Morrow, chairman; E. Lowry Humes, Mrs. Sarah Braun and Thomas A. Joyce—with conspiracy to violate the election laws.

The Registration Commission has held no meetings since election day. Inspection of the registration books yesterday showed 90 per cent of those persons whose names were stricken off the books voted in Tuesday's election.

WIDOW TO GET NEW CALL TO DEATH QUIZ

Blue's 'Vacation' Trip on Boat Stirs Surmises; Inquest Resumes Friday

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Puzzled more than ever by the drowning of Benjamin P. Collings from his cruiser Penguin in Long Island Sound, District Attorney Alexander G. Blue, of Suffolk County left on a yachting trip himself today. He said it was only a week-end vacation. But the nature of it aroused surmises.

The Coroner's inquest was suddenly halted yesterday by Blue when his brother-in-law, Fred Meyer, Long Island life guard, told him of two mysterious men hiding on an island. The District Attorney postponed the inquest for a week, announced two arrests were imminent and departed.

Two hours later he returned and said Meyer's clue was valueless, adding:

"I am right back where I started."

Earlier in the day he had changed his mind about not calling Mrs. Collings from her home in Stamford, Conn., to testify, and demanded her presence. Her attorney, Homer S. Cummings, notified Blue this was impossible, as she was under care of physicians. Later it was announced she would get another chance to appear at the inquest when it is resumed Friday.

Several policemen testified to Coroner William G. Gibson of the story told them by Mrs. Collings when she was found in a motorboat on the sound.

She said her husband had been killed by two men, who, after clubbing him and binding his arms and feet, tossed him into the bay. His body floated to shore at Lloyd's Neck last Wednesday. Mrs. Collings said she was attacked by the men who removed her from the Penguin and took her aboard a canoe, later transferring her to a motorboat. Her daughter, Barbara, 5, was later found on the drifting Penguin.

Orders Phoned Robot Fireman By Light Beam

Discussing "Electrons at Work and at Play," Dr. Phillips Thomas, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, last night demonstrated many new applications of vacuum tube devices at a meeting of the Pittsburgh section of the American Chemical Society, held at the Bureau of Mines.

Telephoning over light beams by means of a new photomatic telephone, delegating firefighting to an intelligent, fire-scanning robot which fights fires automatically, and other new practical products of the research laboratory were demonstrated by Dr. Thomas.

With the stroboglow, which employs the hot cathode grid glow tube, rapidly rotating objects appear to stand still. This glow tube flashes momentarily with each revolution of the object to be viewed. A small electric fan with lettering on each blade was used in this demonstration.

KANE TO LEAVE JAIL TODAY ON $15,000 BAIL

'Mystery' Portion of Woman's Note Compared Professor to Lincoln

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

HAMPTON, Va., Sept. 19. Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, University of Tennessee romance languages professor accused of drowning his wife, today prepared to leave Elizabeth County jail on $15,000 bail.

Kane's apartment in Knoxville, Tenn., has been "burglarized" and two letters from his wife removed, his counsel said.

MAY VISIT KANE, PA.

Kane intends remaining three miles away, at Old Point Comfort, until completion of the proceedings in connection with his case, according to his cousin and defense counsel, E. Kent Kane, of Bradford, Pa. He may pay a brief call on his five brothers and other relatives at Kane, Pa., his cousin said.

Kane revealed that "Betty Dodd" was not the real name of the writer of the mystery letter.

REFERENCE TO LINCOLN

The "enclosure," which was not made public along with the letter, Kane said, was a clipping from a newspaper of June 5 in which a phychologist analyzed the character of Abraham Lincoln. Kane said the writer of the letter pointed out that in her opinion Abraham Lincoln and the college professor, now accused of murder, were similar in that each had a tragic and a comic side to his life.

Kane brushed aside the letter as a whole and said that if the private affairs of half the educators in America were probed and their houses "burglarized," a good percentage of them would yield letters which, if taken seriously, would do no good to reputations.

The Kanes declared they were ready today for the preliminary hearing on the murder charge against Elisha Kane for next Wednesday morning before Judge Joseph E. Dixon.

PHILA. CO. GIVES NEEDY $125,000

A subscription totaling $125,000 will be made by the Philadelphia Company to the fall campaign of the Welfare and Emergency Relief Association, it was announced by Frank R. Phillips, president, last night.

The amount represents more than double the corporation's subscription to the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association in their separate campaigns last winter, he said. The goal for the joint organization's fall campaign is $5,500,000. The campaign will open November 9.

Nearly 80 leaders of industry and commerce were the guests of the association at a dinner last night in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, when Phillips outlined the procedure of the organization during recent months whereby nearly 7,000 men and women have been given employment. Joseph Dilworth will be general chairman of the new campaign.

JAPANESE TAKE MUKDEN IN BATTLE

Army Bombards, Captures Manchurian City; China Files Plea With League

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, Sept. 19.—Starting with a bombardment of Mukden, where between 70 and 80 Chinese soldiers were killed, Japanese military forces today spread through South Manchuria, occupying important towns, stopping railroad traffic and ruining communications systems.

The sudden hostilities sent a wave of terror throughout Northern China as fears arose that the Japanese advance might be carried southward.

Mukden, ancient capital of Manchuria and a strategic point on the Japanese-controlled South Manchurian railway, fell to the Japanese after an eight-hour artillery bombardment.

The Chinese retaliated with machine gun fire, wounding at least one Japanese officer.

After occupying Mukden the Japanese seized the towns of Koumantze and Tantushan preventing the movement of Chinese troops southward over the Taonan railway.

The blowing up of a bridge on the Manchurian railway three miles from Mukden was given by Japanese authorities as the reason for the punitive expedition against Mukden but Chinese officials here charged that the Japanese themselves cut the railroad line as a pretext for military operations.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

This afternoon finds everyone in Greensburg attending the second and closing day of Westmoreland Hunt Horse Show, being held at the polo field.

And tonight there'll be the annual Horse Show dance for the exhibitors with the Greensburg Country Club as the scene of the event. Many small dinners at the club and at private homes will precede the affair.

Both yesterday and today fall clothes and summer costumes were worn by the smart set with trim wool suits worn with Empress Eugenie hats, usually trimmed with a quill or a few tailored feathers, notably smart.

Entertain In Boxes

Watching the show from her box in the grandstand yesterday afternoon was Mrs. Mortimer Miller in blue and white crepe and a wide-brimmed blue straw hat.

Mrs. C. S. B. Ward chose a navy blue suit and a navy blue Empress Eugenie felt hat, and her daughter Katherine wore a brown jersey dress with a matching felt hat.

I saw Mrs. Dorwin J. Donnelly in blue and white crepe with a turban to match, and Mrs. Joseph M. Scrimger in a bottle green crepe suit with a black Eugenie felt hat. Boucle is always popular. Mrs. R. Kent Hanson chose a suit of boucle in rose and blue with which she wore a blue hat.

Katharine Frazer, a debutante of the fall, was in the grandstand with a group of friends. She wore a tailored beige wool coat and a beige Eugenie hat.

In the grandstand I saw Helen Mellon wearing a yellow crepe dress, a beige coat and a hat to match, and Mary Ward in white blue shantung.

Younger Set There

Leonore Bohnwell had a smart ensemble of brown and green with the coat of green and the frock of brown crepe. And she wore a brown felt Eugenie.

Elizabeth Foster wore a blue coat and hat. Marie Kay a blue and white flat crepe dress, and the McCahill twins, Marie and Marguerite, were in riding clothes. With them was Dorothy Langfitt.

Mrs. George Wittmer III wore blue crepe with a pleated bertha collar and a black turban; Mrs. E. A. Diebold chose a yellow crepe ensemble with which she wore a brown felt tricorne, and Mrs. David I. McCahill wore a navy blue crepe suit with a matching tricorne.

There is a little news concerning a benefit for one of the organizations in which society women are very interested. The annual benefit card party for the Eye and Ear Hospital is scheduled to take place Monday afternoon, November 9, at 2 o'clock, in the Hotel Schenley. Mrs. William Scott is president of the board, you know.

Annual Benefit

The next after the horse shows to interest folks will be the annual bench show of the Sewickley Kennel Club, on October 3, in the horse show ring at the Allegheny Country Club. Mrs. Lewis A. Park is chairman of arrangements and is arranging a dog raffle. Mary Elizabeth Floyd is chairman of the program committee, and chairman of the cup committee is Mrs. Christian Ibmsen Shannon, assisted by Mrs. James C. Childs and Mrs. William B. Trainer. The show is being held for the benefit of the social service work conducted by the women's auxiliary of the Allegheny General Hospital.

Hester Muirland Lyon, daughter of the Prescott L. Lyons, of Orchard Terrace, Sewickley, has a house guest Margaret Weir, of Steubenville, O., for whom she gave a buffet supper in her home last evening. Sharing honors with Margaret were William Davis, of Waco, Tex.; Barbara and Jack Cavender, David Foster and W. Moore, all of Cleveland, who are guests of Margaret Griffiths, daughter of the Paul L. Griffiths, of Woodland road. Edgeworth. Margaret Griffiths entertained for her guests and for Margaret Weir with a luncheon yesterday.

Mrs. Story Urges Women to Vary Their Dress

Clothes are the quality of thought objectified, Mrs. Chester B. Story, Pittsburgh author and stylist, said yesterday in the stimulating and thoughtful talk on "Ideated Clothes," which she gave before the literary department of the Congress of Clubs. Determine the idea back of every occasion and dress appropriately, Mrs. Story advised her hearers as she talked of economics, technique, beauty, personality, art and fashion in dress and the newest note, fabrics. Style is individuality perfectly expressed, she remarked. She urged the women to become dramatic and imaginative in their dress by varying the type of their apparel.

Through the courtesy of the Lady Duquesne Shop, Mrs. Story's talk was illustrated by a group of living models, some of whom are members of Congress members: Dorothy Wilhelm, Elsie Seymour, Emily Muncaster, Mrs. Charles Strader, Eugenia Sherrard, Dorothy Dawson and Helen Virginia Johnston.

The talk followed the other program features, chief of which was a presentation of Mr. Coester F. Johnston's clever little radio play, "Keep Cool." Mrs. Philip Benn, district radio chairman for the State Federation, Mr. G. W. Seaman, Mrs. I. A. Hubsch and Glen Riggs presented it. Mrs. Edward Grant Caveney, by request of the department chairman, told the members something of the literary work of her daughter, Mary Langfitt, author of "The Parable of the Virgin." The blessing at table was asked by Mrs. Carl E. Colloosky, and Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, Congress president, welcomed the department. The new officers under Mrs. Judd's chairmanship are Mrs. William Zentrall, vice chairman; Mrs. Richard Gore, secretary, and Mrs. Cosloosky, treasurer. The literary department of the Dormont New Century Club will present the program at the October meeting.

Relief Failure May Force Needy Back to Work

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Texas Senate proves it only requires a majority to call a man a liar in the South.

We need a plurality up North.

And it has to be unanimous for a repeal.

The argument with Gov. Long indicates that relief depends on whose ox is being barbecued.

We're having the same trouble up here. Every man has a relief plan he wants to rub on the other guy.

The New York State Senate is arguing whether faith, hope and charity are Democratic or Republican.

Soon the workingman will be so disgusted with it all that he will go back to work.

And that will be the first real relief since patent medicines contained 60 per cent alcohol.

This Hollywood No Longer Happy Hunting Ground For Reporters

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.

People have more curiosity about Hollywood than any other place on earth.

Satisfying this curiosity provides steady jobs for more than 140 newspaper and magazine writers now plastering their pennants in the film capital. This does not include foreign correspondents, who report news of the stars to 150 magazines and 250 newspapers.

Getting out of Hollywood are 15 daily motion picture columns.

Add to the 14 fan magazines and a number of trade papers.

When I first came out here years ago Hollywood was a happy hunting ground for the newspaper tribe. Now there are four writers after every story. The days of the swivel-chair columnist is gone.

Buddy Rogers

LATEST GOSSIP

Now that [illegible] after December 1, with Buddy Rogers is swamped with offers. One is to open the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, October 15. Another [illegible] work in an Earl Carroll show and after that a role in the [illegible] per room of the New Yorker Hotel, with an hour a week on a national broadcasting hook-up. Either of these propositions include a salary three times his Paramount paycheck. It may be Buddy will go back for the opening of the Waldorf-Astoria and stay there a week. Paramount has the final say-so. . . . Jane Hall, opening the Verdura Lodge Country Club with trout stream, tennis, golf and pitch golf course. . . . Jackie Cooper was 8 years old on Wednesday. . . . L. B. Mayer is a man a day late and a dollar short. . . . Ina Claire, fitted traveling bag, what's holding him already? . . . Wallie Beery, a mechanical airplane and his mother, a riding habit. . . . Lawrence Tibbett can't whistle. . . . Leslie Howard is writing a drama which is said to be on a sensational subject. . . . Polly Moran gets back the middle of October after a two-and-a-half month personal appearance tour. . . . Feminine admirers of Clark Gable will get a shock in "Susan Lennox." His make-up for one episode is a stubble beard and a face covered with oil and grime. . . . Football season puts an end to the studio jobs of many West Coast college players. Paramount had to hire an airplane to get Angela Rogers Hyland's brother back in time for the first day's practice at Stanford.

ANOTHER FIRST NIGHT

Before they get through the autograph seekers will scare the stars away from the premieres. Growing bolder, they followed Ann Harding to her seat at the opening of "Devotion" and confronted her with a dozen extended notebooks. Two rows behind, Jimmy Gleason asked Constance Bennett to autograph his shirt-front, while Charles Judels and this is funnier than you can know tried to get Harry Cohn to put his name on a check-book.

As I was coming in someone spoke to me from the crowd of spectators. It was Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., muffled in an overcoat and wearing dark glasses. He together with Allan Vincent and Clifton Webb, finally ended up in the ice cream room of the Montmartre. They seemed to enjoy the talk.

Sighted among the stars: Mae Clarke, much prettier off screen than on, with Colin Clive and James Whale. Irene Rich, they tell me, she got one of the biggest hands of all. Tay Garnett, the dude in a bowler hat and carrying an ivory-topped cane. Eddie Quillan and his sister, Marie. Dan Lebegoff and Thelma Todd. I thought that was off. Constance Bennett and the Marquis and Marlene Dietrich and Josef von Sternberg.

Jackie Cooper

Sheridan Film Has Little to Recommend

By MARGARET RUSSELL

Lily Damita, that energized Garbo of "The Woman Between," a father and son in the Sheridan this week. The son, Lester Vail, outraged at his father's second marriage, leaves home in a huff without a glimpse of his stepmother. Returning home years later, he meets a Mme. Julie on the boat. They fall in love. She is his father's wife.

A good situation, this unhappy triangle, but that is as far as it goes. Nobody does anything. Lily, the too-wedded wife, sighs and stares and poses with sorrowful shrugs and gutterals. Her husband, C. P. Hengle, mutters and mopes about in a vain effort to startle one out of one's chair. He has trouble with his r's.

TOO MUCH FUSS

These people move about. They talk, they dine, they fret in gorgeous gowns and elaborate settings and polite society and French phrases. And nothing much happens. Even the volatile Lily won't let you be sorry for her for two minutes after the clock has struck 12 and her lover is gone forever, she manifests an ecstatic enthusiasm at the prospect of spending the rest of her days in quiet retirement on the Riviera with her booming, elderly spouse. Tsk, Tsk.

Lost in a flood of an Aesop's Fable, Pathe News, an Eddie Buzzell radio pert-fume story, The Last of Mae Higgins, and a Masque Players Club of Hollywood skit. The Great Junction Hotel with 17 stars completes the program.

Coffee Dan's Club Plans Formal Opening

Coffee Dan's Night Club, Sixth street, will hold a formal opening tonight. Mike Cappy's Orchestra will play. Jack Peck will be master of ceremonies. Bea Kent, personality girl, also will appear.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.—Oh! There's been some sort of mix-up about Mococo, the wealthy Argentine, and Kathryn Ray again. . . . One report had it that Mococo sailed suddenly with a bruised face. Miss Ray says that that is news to her—also his statement before leaving her that he hadn't been divorced, and didn't intend marrying Miss Ray or anybody. . . . Kathryn said that she will rejoin him in Yurrop, and will sail on the next liner—so them's those. . . . Miss Guinan called. Said to be sure and say something about her leaving Satdee to start her tour of the States—and to warn them to get their tails ready. . . . Yours better warn readers about kissing strangers. . . . That "trench mouth" thing is making the rounds again. . . . Oh, yes! Yvonne Shelton, the former Follies girl, isn't in Paris, but is in Honolulu. . . . The romance with Buck Woodward, her husband, is sour, and his new dolly is Eunice Holmes, who was in this Follies, and she was Hal Skelly's ex-squaw. . . . Here's a new thrust I heard: "He's a self-made man—but the stitches show!"

That new production of "Hamlet," with music by Norman-Bel Geddes, is pulling a cuckoo. . . . They are rehearsing with a large orchestra and a choral group. . . . But when the show opens they all will be fired, for they've quietly made recordings of the orchestra and choir. . . . S. Jay Kaufman is back from Paris. . . . He is plotting to bring suit against all Trans-Lux houses for using his title, "Round the Town," which he owns via copyright, he says. . . . Ellsworth Vines, nat'l tennis champ, is plotting to turn professional. . . . An unnamed clown phoned to say that that show is called "Fast and Furious" because the gals are fast and the audience was furious. . . . I. Meltzer says that "Vanities" is one show that has swell lines, which are seen but not heard.

C. A. Penn, the vice prexy of the American Tobacco Company, defended a libel suit in one of the Carolinas the other day for calling someone a thief. . . . A wealthy man, by the way, is spending a small fortune getting out a so-called expose on Mr. Hoover and C. Curtis, but is so worried about Washington that he is having the book made up by one publisher and distributed by another. . . . I heard of a new non-alcoholic beverage that is due soon. It comes in two parts—mixing them automatically makes an iced drink sans the use of ice. . . . Madison Square Garden is suing for its share of the Stribling-Schmeling pictures, but can't locate the owner of the films. . . . Did you know that the Army allows you more for the keep of your horse than for your wife? . . . And they tax streets and leather hats!

Those new put-on-yourself eyelashes that make lashes look as though they were as long as Garbo's are longer than a pussycat's. . . . Sylvia Sidney, Ginger Rogers and Claudette Colbert are using them—the better to blind you, of course. . . . Marie Stevens, of the Follies, and society, is said to be secretly sealed. . . . Somebody showed Dorothy Dell, of the same show, a picture of some hammy radio singer and it so effected her she forgot all the words of her famous song, "Was I Drunk, Was He Handsome and Did My Ma Give Me Hell." Freddie Ziegler says the newspapers have been unkind to him, that they make it appear like he threw his new wife out. . . . When she threw him out. . . . He phones her every day, I hear, and sings "Just One More Chance," but he doesn't know the key. Perhaps he has a cold.

There was a to-do at the West Side Court Tuesday night. A man described as Shirley Parshall's bones was held, but the complainant, supposed to be Miss Parshall of "Vanities," didn't show, to prosecute the charge. . . . Your complaint of the other column regarding the treatment accorded Polando and Boardman, the fliers who flew to Turkey and then returned, to have their medals taxed for duty, brings this query: Will the Lindberghs, who are bringing back Oriental things like rugs, china, etc., pay duty? . . . One of your contemporaries said that he was strolling on East Fiftieth street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues. . . . East Fiftieth? . . . And did you hear about two city dock workers who were murdered, supposed to be Seabury witnesses? . . . The murders are supposed to have taken place in Keansburg. . . . Arthur Swanstrom's divorce suit gave Bernice Roberts, of the Follies, a sour break. . . . The papers said Bernice was his girl. . . . I always thought Eunice Healy, of Girl Crazy, was.

One of those very unfunny wags put a pie in my face with this one: That the depression is so bad the radio is using a lotta cigar bands. . . . And they throw fits. . . . Ruth Etting just phoned. Said she received a batch of wires from all over the country over her broadcast with you, and said that in case some guestar ever disappoints she will be glad to help out again. . . . She's too sweet, that's what! . . . Norman S. phoned. He says they may call them hat pins in this country, but in Scotland they are cigaret holders! . . . Hehehehh. . . . And that the only people these days who are putting money out on jewelry are the pawnbrokers. . . . Did I tell you the one about the flop show that opened on a Monday night and closed a week later? . . . Well on the last night it seems the audience got up in a body and went home—in a taxi!

Helen Wills Moody, whose husband will tour the states for his firm, will tour with him—but no advertising, she says. . . . That they mustn't use her name for publicity. . . . Your New Orleans paper wishes you'd mention "America's First Super-heavyweight Contest," to be held there for a charity on the 26th. . . . So, go ahead. . . . The Pathfinder offers you a quotable nifty to wit: That the only good paying is on the Road to Ruin. . . . J. J. Shubert and Percy Hammond made up after 20 years of feuding the other night. . . . That's sort of a record, no? . . . Some day use George Bernard Shaw's swelegant crack about why he didn't like a certain fellow: "I dislike him," barked Shaw, "because he only listens when HE talks."

Raskob is representing Mr. Curtis to merge the Sun with the Post on Oct. 1. This is definite. . . . Bobby Crawford didn't lose 2 million, and is working on his 26 million after losing half of it in the crashes, but who didn't? . . . George White claims he collaborated on the Brown & Henderson songs, but the boys say this is a canard. . . . Christine Maple is out of the Follies. . . . David Bath has quit Park Row to manage Morton Downey, he says. . . . The John Walters and the J. Irving Walshes (Margaret Quimby's, of the Lido set—Walsh is the really man), have parted, with Quimby running off with John. There is more dynamite to the story, however. Tell you when you come in. . . . R. C.

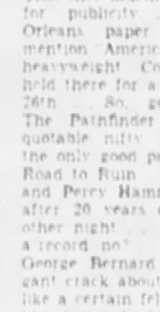
WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 19.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Poor little Gandhi. He is becoming discouraged with the London conference. He says they only talk.

I wonder if he thought a nation could independence over a conference table and not over a gun barrel.



Will Rogers

Where would we have been if Washington had conferred instead of confiscating?

Didn't a Missouri Senator set the Philippines free this summer? And Pat Hurley went over and annexed 'em again.

Ammunition beats persuasion when you are looking for freedom.

Stories That Cannot Be Used

PLENTY of stories that no columnist should use litter the desk this week. Here's an odd one about a celebrated doctor who was called to a Park avenue address to give his opinion in the case of a young girl who was dangerously ill. When he arrived he found three other noted medicos already in consultation.

He, too, examined the girl. He spoke to the others and nodded sagely. He looked at the charts and consulted the nurse. He did, in other words, the very things you might expect him to do. And then, by a nod, he summoned the girl's father to another room.

There's no question about the seriousness of the situation, he asserted. That girl must be operated on as soon as possible.

The father looked grave.

"I was afraid that would be your diagnosis," he murmured, "and I appreciate your advice. But I wonder if I could impose on you just a trifle more?"

"Certainly," said the celebrated physician. "I'm only too happy to help."

"Well, the father went on, "I have three doctors in there with my daughter and I respect them all. Which one would you suggest as the best to perform the operation?"

The medico pondered the question.

"I'll tell you," he stated finally. "There really isn't a great deal of choice. Each doctor in there is an excellent man. As far as fees are concerned, any one of them will charge you $500 for the job. I hesitate to choose one for you."

"I don't care about the expense," cried the father impatiently. "I must have the very best in town."

"Very well," said the physician. "I'll get you the man whom I think is the best in America. His fee will be $1,000."

"I don't care if it's $5,000," shouted the father excitedly. "Call him up at once."

"I don't have to call him," replied the doctor softly. "You're talking to him now."

And—leaving the three other medicos out in the cold—he himself performed the operation.

Here's a wire from Texas Guinan that I would never be able to put in this space. Texas is unquestionably the greatest figure that American night life ever knew. One of the best-publicized women in all the world, she has an uncanny knack of getting into trouble and then wriggling out to the accompaniment of front page space. An amazing lady, our Texas.

Her wire tells me she is about to leave Broadway for an extended tour.

"With my kids and my band," she states, "I go to New Orleans. I open the season in Havana. I go to Reno. Then I go to Azua Caliente for New Years."

Miss Guinan fails to state where the government would like to see her go.

From Mr. H. S. Kress, of Pittsburgh, comes a very pathetic tale that is too sad even for this column. And when you find a story as pathetic as that, my friends, you have discovered the ultimate in sadness.

Mr. X. Smith, a Pittsburgh sailor, wanted to have his car battery recharged. He took it to the shop of Mr. Murray, a Pittsburgh battery man, and asked him to do the job.

"I want you to do the work," he said. "That is the way it should be. Because we are neighbors and friends."

A few days later, Mr. Smith went back for his battery. Instead of a battery, he got a shock. The battery had been taken apart and was nothing but a jumble of parts. Mr. Smith cried aloud that his battery had been used but 9,000 miles.

"Can't help that," replied Mr. Murray. "You'll have to get a new one, because that one was no good."

Some six months later, Mr. Murray, the battery man, visited the shop of Mr. Smith, the tailor.

"I'm bringing you my new suit to be cleaned," said Mr. Murray, "because I want no hard feelings between us. After all, it was no fault of mine that you needed a new battery."

"I bring you my suit because I want you to do the work. That is the way it should be. Because we are neighbors and friends."

The two men shook hands and Mr. Murray departed. He was back two days later for his suit. Mr. Smith led him to the rear of his shop and showed him the garment. It had been cut into a thousand pieces and was distributed all over the floor.

"There is your suit," asserted the tailor. "It couldn't be cleaned so I took it apart. You'll have to get a new suit."

Mr. Smith and Mr. Murray are still neighbors. After the police pulled them apart, however, they ceased to be friends.

We come now to a tale that cannot be employed here for two reasons. First of all it sounds a bit fantastic. And secondly, it sounds as though it must have been used somewhere before. See if you do not agree with me.

Some years back a vaudeville ventriloquist found himself stranded in a Western mining town. He was as hungry as a man could be and he hadn't the slightest idea from whence his next meal was coming. He passed a wide-open saloon that was running full blast and wet his lips nervously as he looked in and saw the heaps of free lunch standing on the long bar.

A little dog passed, a shaggy, curly little dog. The animal stood beside the ventriloquist and whined. The voice-thrower snapped his fingers, picked up the dog, pushed open the doors and marched into the saloon.

He stood beside a man whom he judged to be proprietor and placed the dog on the bar. He grabbed a handful of lunch and munched it contentedly.

"Give me a large glass of beer," he told the bartender.

"I'll have the same," said the dog.

The proprietor wheeled suddenly.

"Did I hear that dog talk?" he asked in amazement.

"You certainly did," replied the actor. "You are now looking at Peter, the only talking dog in the world. Am I right, Peter?"

"You can say it again, partner," replied the dog.

To make a long story a little easier on the eyes, the boss soon asked if the dog was for sale. The ventriloquist hesitated for a moment and then said he did need $200 to get to New York. If the proprietor would advance him that sum, he would leave Peter there until he returned on his next trip and reclaimed the animal.

"Good," said the boss, as he counted out the money. "I'll take him."

"Do you mean to say that you're leaving me?" asked the dog.

The ventriloquist was nearing the door.

"That's right," he replied.

"Well," cried the dog, "that's a fine trick. Just for that, I'm not going to say a word until you get back!"

Such stories! How can I print them?

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Monday night and for five nights and two matinees thereafter the Alvin will resound with the tunes and merriment of "Three Little Girls," and the applause we should hope of other girls, big and little, and boy friends. This is to be the season's opening attraction in the Sixth street opera house, and George M. Young, new manager of the Alvin, has a lot of brand new eclat on hand for those who like a little of that with their openings. The operetta, for such it is, has a cast headed by Josephine Huston, Greta Alpeter and Clifford Newdahl.

Small Timer says there's one big thing to be said in favor of the hole in the doughnut—It's not that that gives you indigestion.

The Harris swings into a new cinematic week today with "Sherlock Holmes' Fatal Hour," featuring Arthur Wontner, whose stage work has been above par, say nothing of mar.

Small Timer says another way to aid the unemployed would be to put chairs around places where steam shovels and the like are at work.

The Sunday midnight attraction in the Warner will be the Four Marx Brothers in "Monkey Business," for one performance only. The second week of George Arliss in "Alexander Hamilton" will begin Monday.

Small Timer, taking a final bow, remarks that he has had customers walk out on him, but musicians—never until now.

Joe Penner, the "wannaguacka duck" comedian, has been given a principal comedy role in "Torch Song," musical play now in rehearsal to be produced by Schwab & Mandel, their third venture of an admittedly young season.

Goofy Marx Boys in Town

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Found: The missing link. It is the Marx Boys. Monkees couldn't possibly be as sane and human beings couldn't possibly be as insane as these fellows. So there you are!

They are on the Stanley screen in "Monkey Business." That's not what the picture is, too—monkey business. It is a loonies' laugh banquet as you ever attended. Everything is there from saps to nuts.

Groucho Marx, Mr. Boom to you rattles off more goofy chatter in six reels than you'd hear in an insane asylum in six years. (Don't ask us how we know.)

Harpo has a pet frog, his usual half-wit makeup and a mania for chasing girls. And it still takes more than a talkie to make him talk. Zeppo has the same old aroma of spaghetti about him, while Brother Chico plays straight as usual and gets the girl in the finale, although no one seems interested in what becomes of the girl.

Each of the Marxes thinks he's a Maurice Chevalier and they all sing a song to prove it. Harpo's song comes out of a baby victrola tied to his back.

Closing episodes take place in a stable, or, as Groucho says, a stable if you smell it and a barn if you see it. And the affair ends with this same Groucho prodding about in a big haystack. "What are you doing?" someone asks. "Looking for the needle," he replies.

We grabbed our hat and crawled up the aisle on hands and knees. We wanted to help Groucho find that needle. At the exit, a polite usher said straight jackets were sold across the street.

Three blocks away, we remembered we missed the news pictures and novelty reels. But we didn't miss the stage show! For one thing there isn't any.

Horse Makes Fine Hero in Film

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Tommy Boy ought to be fed golden oats by his Hollywood owners, for he is the real hero of the new screen drama, "Sporting Blood," which brought the Kentucky Derby into the Penn Theater yesterday.

Seeing this picture is likely to convince skeptics like Clarence Darrow that horses have souls, even if human beings are devoid thereof. For this picture scores chiefly in those scenes where the equine cast manifests those traits of sympathy, loyalty and kindness which are so often lacking in mere man.

George Seibel

Tommy Boy almost makes us believe that Swift's Houyhnhnms in "Gulliver's Travels" are true.

BLUE GRASS IDYL

The picture has been made in the Blue Grass country around Bardstown, Kentucky, and at Latonia and Churchill Downs.

"Sporting Blood" is almost a complete biography of the horse, because the story begins with the colting in a mud puddle that costs the mother mare's life.

Ernest Torrence is the human actor who puts the tears into that episode. Here is that dour Caledonian as tender as a song of Burns.

Of course there are races, which Tommy Boy wins or loses, and the grand final race which he was bound to win, and there is a love story in which Clark Gable and Madge Evans are affectingly natural, and there is darkey comedy and foul play in the regulation doses, but the horse is the hero after all!

VERY FUNNY FARCE

Instead of the stage show there is a very funny screen farce in which Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are gorgeously idiotic. "Come Clean" shows this pair saving the life of a girl who attempts suicide, and then tries to make them assume responsibility for her future, resulting in a hilarious game of hide-and-seek.

Thrills Seen In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Twenty thousand young Fascisti executing war games and athletic drills provides one of the most spectacular pictures ever made and is contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News and thrillingly described by the Globe Trotter. The pictures are the more significant because, in a recent issue, Hearst Metrotone showed King Victor Emanuel of Italy inspecting a fleet of 1,000 airplanes, the largest number ever garnered in peace times.

The first pictures ever made of a ride through the treacherous Five Fingers Rapids on the Yukon River on the Canadian-Alaskan border are shown. These are the rapids where so many prospectors lost their lives in the famous gold rush to Dawson in 1898. While a tiny boat bearing the Hearst cameraman is bucking the raging current, threatening disaster any second, two caribou are seen struggling gallantly in the waters. After an exhaustive battle they reach the shore.

That the memory of Knute Rockne spurs the Notre Dame football team on to great heights is shown in first pictures of the team's training for the coming season.

SETH PARKER HOMECOMING :-: Big Celebration From Jonesport, Maine

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

Jonesport, Me.—A quaint East Coast town of 800 inhabitants becomes the key of a red network program tonight in a special welcome home celebration for Phillips H. Lord, whose "Seth Parker" character actually lives in the hearts of thousands of radio listeners. . . . Lord has just finished a motion picture in Hollywood and the entire population of Jonesport from the town blacksmith to the village doctor, has set the town afire with banners and bunting in honor of their favorite. . . . Your money back if WCAE doesn't give you a good show at 6:30.

Darrell V. Martin

Count Felix von Luckner, world adventurer, and Joan Lowell, author of "The Cradle of the Deep," are to be guest speakers on KDKA at 9:30 tonight during "The First Nighter" presentation . . . this program, always good, offers for its play tonight "Death at the Helm," a story of the sea, with much of the action taking place aboard a whaling vessel.

* * *

We can't stop praising the work of the Harding sisters, Billie and Irene, who have arranged piano-organ duets on KDKA at 10:45 tonight of Dvorak's "Humoresque," "Kiss Me Again" and "When You're Away."

Question a Day:

I was quite surprised to learn the other night, when I tuned through WCAE, station that the operators in the control room tune in their station on a transmitter set to other wavelengths. I noticed that when Hugh McGee went to the microphone every 15 minutes to make a New York "announcement that the operator shut off this receiving set." Why? Marilyn J., Wilkinsburg.

Answer—Studio loudspeakers are not permitted to operate near a microphone. When the sound from a loudspeaker strikes a microphone which is connected to the input or receiving signals direct from the air, it causes an "acoustic coupling." This is also called a "feed back" and produces a hum or squeal on the air. For this reason, loudspeakers in studios are automatically disconnected when a microphone is turned on.

Good out-of-town tonight: Nick Lucas on WEAF, WGY, WSM at 7; Carlena Love on WJZ, WGAR, WJR at 9:15; Raymond Knight's Station KUKU on WJZ, WGAR, WBZ, WJR at 10 and Russ Columbo on WJZ, WENR, WJR WGAR, WSB at 11:30.

Studio Lights:

Cab Calloway and his band are to be guest stars of Walter Winchell, Sun-Telegraph columnist over CBS-WJAS next Tuesday night at 8:45.

Jock Sutherland, coach of the Pitt Panthers, and Fielding "Hurry Up" Yost of the University of Michigan, are to present intimate, behind the scene views of the football campaign over CBS-WJAS starting Friday night, October 18, at 10:30 p. m. . . . other coaches have been invited to speak in the series which is to be sponsored by a shaving cream company.

Baritone Bing Crosby, who starts a 7 o'clock schedule over CBS-WJAS next Tuesday), is one of a family of seven.

Something went haywire in that "Radio Queen" selection of Harriet Lee, of CBS . . . selection of Virginia Gardiner, NBC actress, was in the cards but didn't materialize.

Cousin Lora is to resume her children's program over WCAE next week . . . the new time: Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5 p. m. and Saturday morning at 10:30 . . . .

When friends around the local studios stumble on a quotation from Shakespeare, they usually call on Phyllis Morton, who can recite from memory more than 1,000 odes.

WJAS is to carry a 30-minute address by Prime Minister James Ramsay MacDonald from London next Thursday at 6 o'clock . . . and tomorrow around 2 p. m. KDKA is to present an excellent character sketch of the gentleman.

Today's Tid Bit:

Bill Bober, WCAE operator, dusted off his slide rule last night, then told us there are 460 feet of scored track on the average phonograph record, or a mile of scored track when you hear one-half-hour of electrical transcriptions.

Ever Take an Internal Bath?

A Strange Question — but if You Want to Rewin Energy, Brain Quickness and Glorious Health, Read This

I speak from experience. It was just such a message as this that dynamited me out of the slough of dullness and wretched health into the sunlight atmosphere of happiness, vitality and abundant energy.

To me, and no doubt to you, an Internal Bath was a mystery. So I stepped into May's & Liggett's and asked for a booklet, "Why We Should Bathe Internally." I quickly learned.

Vaguely I had an idea that an internal bath was an enema. I was dead wrong. There's about as much similarity as between a kite and an airplane.

A bona fide internal bath is the administration into the intestinal tract of pure, warm water purified by a marvelous cleaning tonic. The appliance that holds and injects the liquid is the J.B.L. Cascade, invented by that eminent physician, Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell, to save his own life. By a natural pressure system it floods the entire length of the lower intestine and flushes it absolutely clean—all without the slightest pain or discomfort.

Now here's why this internal bath is so important. The intestinal tract is the waste canal of the body. Due to our soft foods, lack of exercise and highly artificial civilization, most of us suffer from intestinal stasis (delay). Passage of waste is entirely too slow.

Result: Germs and poisons breed in this waste and the blood stream swiftly absorbs them.

Those headaches you get, that exhausting fatigue, that terrible distress two hours after eating, that nervousness, those sleepless nights and countless other ills are directly due to these poisons in your system. Worse, they are the generic cause of premature old age, hardening of arteries, rheumatism, high blood pressure and many serious maladies. In fact, the great Professor Fages of Vienna blames them for 95 per cent of all diseases.

The sure and effective means of ridding the system of these poisons is by internal bathing. By flushing them out before they reach the blood. By preventing their re-enforcement, and thus allowing tissues and organs to get rid of those already there.

Take your internal bath before retiring and you'll sleep like a child. You'll rise immensely invigorated. Your eyes will sparkle. Your brain will be as bright as a new-minted dollar. That's my experience—and that of more than 1,000,000 men and women who renew health through Internal Bathing.

Step into a May's & Liggett's Drug Store and get a copy of this marvelous book, "Why We Should Bathe Internally." Read Dr. Turner's chapter—it's a revelation.

Book is absolutely free—get your copy immediately.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—With Gandhi's soft low voice penetrating American parlors only two world figures are left outside the radio ramparts: Stalin and Willem of Amerongen.

Maybe we'll hear them, too, before the year is out, so unexpected is the enterprise of the radio rulers. The lords of the air began the year with Mussolini. They may, with their eye on dramatic contrasts, end it with Stalin.

For Gandhi's plunge into the radio sea Alfred J. McCosker, director of WOR, is entirely responsible. McCosker had his eyes open, seized an opportunity made the most of it. When networks hesitated to air a banquet of the Indian National Congress of America, McCosker was quick to offer his microphones. His only request was that if Gandhi came to America or Britain WOR should broadcast whatever message to us he cared to give. The request was granted. McCosker could have had the talk exclusively, but in return for past favors permitted the networks to have access to it.

* * *

Scheduling of Gandhi on the radio was sudden—too sudden to bring as large an audience as might otherwise have been the case. Those who heard him were impressed by his voice, the quality of his English. Save for his pronunciation of "therefore" as "derforo" his language sounded like that of the cultured Briton.

* * *

Radio has produced its first rebel against oldtime songs. Fred Hildebrand, Broadway comedian, holds the distinction. Most entertainers race for dusty shelves, search for antique ballads, cement their hold on the microphones by airing them to the armchairs. Not so Hildebrand. Listen to his letter:

"Sponsors of my broadcast decided to change their program, after I had been on the air five weeks, and have me sing all old songs, such as 'The Bird on Nellie's Hat'—songs entirely unsuited to me. Rather than continue on a program which I did not feel would enable me to do my best work, I returned my contract, which had 25 more weeks to go."

Just a snap of the fingers to the dough bags. And in these times too.

Pennsylvania Leads In Balkan Aliens

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—(AP)—Pennsylvania has more of the immigrant flow of population from three Central European nations than any other state in the Union. From the returns of the 1930 census, the Census Bureau statisticians figured today Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Lithuania sent more of their population into Pennsylvania than anywhere else in the United States.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO DECLINE

Leaders Sag 1 to 2 Points As Selling Is Resumed; Big Block of G. M. Sold

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP).—Large scale selling persisted as trading was resumed in the stock market today. There were several losses of 1 to 3 points or more by the end of the first half hour.

There was no letup in the pressure against foreign holdings of United Kingdom [illegible] opening 1 points lower to 2 points below par. The London market resuming Saturday's holiday for the first time since 1927, was heavy.

American Telephone was still a weak feature of the stock market, being more than 3 points. Utilities and rails were offering selling support. Consolidated Gas, National Power and Light and Electric Power and Light lost a point or so. In the rails Atlantic Coast Line, Southern Pacific, Lackawanna and New Haven lost about a point or more than 2.

A few issues were bolstered apparently by short covering. American Tobacco B rose a point and New York Central a fraction. Such issues as United States Steel, General Electric and Westinghouse lost about a point. Chemicals were under pressure. Allied and Du Pont losing more than 2 points.

Sterling cables opened at $4.85⅞, off 1-16.

Utility Selling Based on Theory That Stocks Are Out of Line

Selling of public utilities and power shares has been explained by the increasing talk that these [illegible] are out of line with others. A good part of the support however also represents liquidation because of fears that increasing pressure will be exerted in the coming months for rate reductions. Market interests are considering possible developments in the various states and insist that legislation may be enacted against some of the utilities because of the agitation among consumers for lower charges for light and power.

Stocks of gold producing companies have been bought on all reactions during the recent market unsettlement. Higher prices for these stocks naturally have encouraged considerable profit taking. The gold shares are selling materially above the prices which ruled about the middle of 1929, when the remainder of the market was at its peak. Switching from other issues into the gold stocks has been in progress, with more commission houses recommending the purchase of these shares on reactions. The profit taking, while causing technical recessions, has been well absorbed, and these issues have moved upward again as soon as the supply diminished.

Copper statistics and conditions in the red metal industry seem to indicate that curtailed production through agreements is most desirable. Consumers of the metal have continued to buy only for actual requirements. They have been in control of the price situation to a great degree and the record low quotations for copper indicate that consumers will continue to hold the upper hand.

Most commission houses are advising clients against indiscriminate liquidation when the market is reacting. They contend that technical rallies should develop from time to time as the various stocks become oversold, and that those desiring to dispose of stocks could wait for such periods to liquidate.

Recently, considerable liquidation has been encountered when the market has moved downward. Breaking through previous resistance levels increased the supply from investors who had become disappointed because of the inability of the market to stage a recovery for more than a few hours without suffering a sharp setback, usually to new lows.

A proposal to launch the American Ice Company in the laundry business as another step in its program of diversification will be considered at the directors meeting next Tuesday. The company has been making an effort to widen its earning power due to changes in the ice business halting the growth of its profits and is already in the coal business, but that is of a highly seasonal character. It was reported today that the dividend probably will be cut from $3 to $2 annually if the laundry project is approved.

Due to lower earnings, there has been some talk in speculative quarters of a reduction in the Columbia Gas dividend to a $1 a share basis before the end of the year unless revenues increase. This opinion is not shared in all quarters and particularly not by interests who have been informed on the company's affairs in the past.

LONDON STEADY AT CLOSE

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—The first Saturday session of the London Stock Exchange since 1917 opened this morning in the face of political uncertainties at home and depressing news from Wall street, but the members raised a cheer as the doors opened at the usual time.

Business was only moderate throughout the session and there were early declines of one to two points in the gilt-edged securities, three to four points in German bonds and recessions in India stocks. There was a slight recovery later and the market finished fair but still somewhat nervous.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(INS.)—Announcement by the national coalition government of its stand in regard to the coming elections will be made shortly to clear up the uncertainty held chiefly responsible for weakness in the foreign exchanges during the past week, it was understood today.

Lack of definite information as to the government's probable course of action was believed to be the chief factor behind the heavy selling of the last few days.

NEW RATE HELD TEMPORARY RAILAID

Drastic Changes Seen as Needful Before Genuine Relief Can Be Obtained

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—After a decade of new style regulation, numerous leading railroads are today concerned with how to keep on an earnings basis.

In the emergency, they are asking for a 15 per cent freight rate increase. Though this request should receive sympathetic consideration from the Interstate Commerce Commission it is at best a stop-gap cure. Genuine relief must go deeper and must include more drastic changes, sometimes on the part of railroad management, including innovations for improvement of the service and great zeal in merchandising what the carriers can offer the public.

Mr. Ruekeyser

CHANGES NEEDED

It must also include the right of the railroads to engage in all competitive forms of transportation and likewise uniform regulation in these other activities for railroad and non-railroad operators of trucks, airplanes and inland steamers. Moreover, the railroads should be encouraged to eliminate competitive economic waste through sensible transcontinental mergers and consolidations.

H. C. Hallmark, freight traffic executive of the Southern Pacific, in setting forth a railroad man's platform, said:

"I would eliminate all subsidies, direct or indirect. Let the users of the inland waterways pay the full carrying charges for those services which have been and are being furnished by the state, either local or national. Let the same thing apply to harbor and dock improvements, to the protective service furnished by the coast guard and other agencies. Let the users of the highways pay for the highways, whether rural or urban. Let them carry their fair share of the cost of grade crossing elimination and let them pay for paving the streets which they use, even though in the public interest a railway happens to have a track or tracks in such streets.

URGES EQUALIZATION

"Second, remove the present inequality of taxation. There is no sound excuse for permitting the steamship industry in this country, protected by its laws and benefitting by its industry, to go scot free and contribute substantially nothing to governmental support. The same is true with respect to the motor vehicle. Neither has commenced to contribute to the support of government until it has paid for the publicly constructed facilities it uses.

"With respect to regulation, treat all of them alike. I care not whether you regulate our competitors or free us from regulation."

Illinois Utility To Cut Gas Rates

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—A new schedule of reduced rates for gas service, made possible by the bringing of natural gas into the Chicago metropolitan area, has been filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. The new rates would bring a reduction in cost of gas for residential heating and commercial space heating of approximately 20 per cent. Gas for cooking and domestic purposes would be reduced approximately 2 per cent.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

INSURANCE MEN TO VOTE FOR PRESIDENT

Holgar J. Johnson Agency Association Members to Elect Leader for Year

Holgar J. Johnson, general agent of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company in Pittsburgh, has announced the following candidates for president of the Holgar J. Johnson Agency Association: William J. Wright, Thomas F. Walter and Dale M. Colwell.

The election campaign will continue until October 1. The 150 agents in the association are entitled to one vote for each $1,000 of insurance they have in force. A prepaid application entitles an agent to an extra vote. A split application may be divided between two candidates by two agents.

AGENTS TO VOTE

Agents are casting their votes for the candidate who they believe measures up in production value to the agency. Executives in giving freely of help to the agents and members of the agency.

The efficiency of the candidate as an underwriter should be considered, Mr. Johnson believes, as well as his general standing in the community and agency. He said:

"Vote for the kind of man you want as a leader for all non-official activities of the agency and one who can help guide the management towards such programs and policies as will make this a better agency for you to be associated with."

TO GET CUP

The president when elected will receive a large silver loving cup engraved with his name and the year. He will retain it for a year until re-election occurs. His duties and privileges consist of serving as advisory officer to the management on all policy matters. He will represent the agency with the management on all matters of controversial nature. He will be invited to partake in managers conferences for the planning of agency policies and will receive publicity in insurance journals local and national.

Judges of election are Holgar J. Johnson, general agent; Eric G. Johnson, associate general agent, and Harriet Fitzpatrick.

To date the election is being hotly contested by all three candidates and their sponsors.

THREE PITTSBURGH ADVERTISING MEN HEADING THE COURSES AT PITTSBURGH ACADEMY

U. S. BUSINESS IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Ontario, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported that the United States owns 1,071 of the 1,260 branch, subsidiary and affiliated establishments of foreign countries in Canada, in which the total capital invested is $1,746,220,000. The total United States capital invested is $1,189,590,000, or 68 per cent of the total. Great Britain's total is $246,616,000 and Canada's $304,632,000.

Many of the United States branches in Canada were not entirely controlled by American capital. Many were but 90 per cent, others as low as 50 per cent, controlled. The remainder of the common stock was owned largely by Canadians.

Air Brake to Earn Half Dividend Requirements

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE Company will earn more than 50 per cent of its dividend requirements for the full year of 1931, A. L. Humphrey, president, said following the directors' meeting yesterday. The directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share payable October 31 to stockholders of record September 30.

This prediction indicates that earnings will exceed $1 a share for the year. In 1930 net profit was $6,496,842, or $2.05 a share on 3,172,111 shares of capital stock. In 1929 net profit was $8,822,711, or $2.78 a share.

The estimate of the year's earnings implies that some additional recession will take place in profits in the third and fourth quarters. In the first quarter of the year $963,241, or 30 cents a share, was earned as compared with $990,529, or 31 cents a share in the second quarter. Earnings for the first half of the year are $1,953,770, or 61 cents a share, or less than half profit of $4,014,909, or $1.26 a share, a year ago.

Union Switch Busy

ACTIVITY AT THE PLANT of the Union Switch and Signal Company, a subsidiary, is being maintained at a high rate, while production of air brakes reflects the sharp drop in buying of rolling stock by railroads. Workers at the Union Switch plant are being employed on an average of four days a week.

Among the large orders for signal installations recently placed have been contracts for $2,500,000 worth of equipment for the New York subway, $750,000 for the Philadelphia subway and $1,000,000 for train control equipment for 160 new electric locomotives for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Dividends Safe

The STRONG FINANCIAL position of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company has made it possible for the directors to continue the payment of regular dividends in spite of the decline in business. There is no funded debt or preferred stock. Over a long period of years the company has placed its production facilities in excellent condition and has built up an enviable current position.

At the close of 1930 current assets amounted to $46,093,488 against current liabilities of $3,789,773. Cash amounted to $8,768,640. United States government and other marketable securities were valued at $20,452,984. Annual dividends require $6,343,524. Obviously the withdrawal of half this amount would not seriously deplete working capital which amounted to $42,303,715.

Signal Purchases Maintained

THE RAILROADS HAVE reduced their expenditures for most types of equipment in line with the serious decline in traffic and earnings which they have experienced during the past two years. This economy move has been particularly apparent in purchases of cars and rails. But it has not been so marked in their buying of interlocking signal and train control equipment where these devices offer an opportunity for cutting operating expenses. Union Switch and Signal has benefited from this by furnishing equipment permitting the control of all trains over long distances of line from a single tower. Some of these installations cover sections of track extending over 100 miles.

McKee to Head Cocoa Exchange

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Howard T. McKee is slated for election to the presidency of the New York Cocoa Exchange in the report of the nominating committee. He was a vice president from 1926 to 1929 and will succeed W. J. Kibbe. Harold L. Bache was nominated for vice president to succeed I. H. Hirsch and F. J. Ryan for treasurer.

Retail Sales Tax Survey Is Planned

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The National Retail Dry Goods Association plans to study the proposed retail sales tax from a national as well as a state standpoint, says D. F. Kelly, Chicago, president of the organization. Kelly said substantial progress is being made in the mutual adjustment of problems of merchandising of electrical goods between department stores and public utility companies.

EXPERTS GIVE ADVERTISING COURSES

Pittsburgh Academy Secures Three Leaders in Field To Instruct Pupils Here

Three of the outstanding advertising men of Western Pennsylvania have been secured to head the courses in advertising at Pittsburgh Academy for the fall and winter term which starts the first week in October. In addition to Edwin H. Stuart, who has handled the courses in typography and layout for a number of years, William W. Hague and Joseph S. Schewe are listed to actively direct the courses in direct mail and retail advertising.

Pittsburgh Academy for 50 years has been known as the outstanding state accredited and nationally recommended educational institution in this district. Over 15,000 alumni live in Western Pennsylvania and they include many of the prominent business and professional men and women. The school of business, which was started a few years ago, has rapidly grown in importance until today 12 complete courses are offered in this department.

The course in typography and layout starts Wednesday evening, September 30, and in addition to Mr. Stuart, who will direct the course, George Kinnard and E. H. Stuart, Inc., typographers, will deliver special lectures.

It is estimated that over 3,000 people in the Pittsburgh district regularly have something to do with preparing of retail advertising. This course will be headed by Mr. Schewe, advertising manager of the B. K. Elliott Company and chairman of the direct mail group of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club. This is the only course of its kind offered in the city and over half of the work will consist in actually preparing retail advertising.

Mr. Hague, graduate of Washington and Jefferson College, and president of the Mail Ad Service of Pittsburgh, will handle the course in direct mail advertising campaigns.

In addition to the courses in advertising, some of the most popular courses at the School of Business at Pittsburgh Academy include practical speaking, under the direction of Prof. E. R. Moses; letter writing and commercial English, which is directed by J. Franklin Kinsley; psychology of self development, directed by the president of Pittsburgh Academy, James F. Grady; business law, headed by Assistant United States District Attorney William J. Aiken; fundamentals of life insurance, under Mr. Holgar J. Johnson and practical selling, by Mr. Sam K. Smith, sales director of the William Penn Hotel.

BUSES ACHIEVE LOW COST

Exceptional records for operating economy have been established by International buses used in school service.

Two International model A-4 chassis were in operation for a year by the East Huntingdon Township schools at an average operating cost of .42 cents a mile. During the year the buses traveled 37,992 miles.

The net operating cost for traveling 664,560 pupil miles was $2,730, and including depreciation and interest it was $5,392.

M. J. Horsch, supervising principal of the school district of the Township of East Huntingdon, said in a letter to the International Harvester Company:

"When we consider that the average cost for this state is 2.3 cents per pupil per mile, and for this particular county 1.8 cents per pupil per mile, it is deserving of attention. It is even more noteworthy when we consider that trolley transportation at the regular rate would have cost almost nine times as much, and at the special school rate more than four times as much.

"At the above price per mile, one could travel from New York to San Francisco for $12, or from Pittsburgh to New York for $1.35. And all this in spite of the fact that we averaged two stops per mile of operation."

Three Carriers Inquire for Total of 111,000 Tons With $43 Price in Doubt

By B. F. V. LUTY

Rail inquiries totaling 111,000 tons have appeared at about the usual time, Chesapeake and Ohio naming 55,000 tons, Chicago and Northwestern 30,000 tons and Erie 26,000 tons.

There had been reason to suspect that the railroads would be slow in taking up the matter of rails and continuance of the old price of $43 a ton may be questioned. Last year the New York Central raised an issue, but eventually fell in line. Two years ago rail buying was above the average, while one year ago it was rather light, and there is no little rail tonnage still on mill books awaiting releases.

Line pipe was regarded as very near the end of its season, but a total of 54,000 tons of purchases is reported in three orders, for oil, natural gas and gasoline respectively. The season as a whole has not come up to early expectations, but has done better than seemed probable three months ago. Regular prices have been obtained for line pipe lately, while early in the year there were some notable cases of cutting.

OUTPUT DROPS

Steel ingot production was at 34 per cent of capacity in July and 31 per cent in August, according to official reports. The last week in August may be estimated at 30 per cent and the past week at 28 per cent, making two points decrease in three weeks, of little consequence in itself, but of much significance as showing that to date there is an entire absence of seasonal improvement.

Four of the last eight years had seasonal improvement, visible in each case before the end of August. In 1927 production simply stayed down, while in 1923, 1929 and 1930 there were further and marked decreases after August.

The automobile producers have been running at rather variant rates and have mixed prospects. The industry as a whole is producing less this month than last, when an unofficial count showed 197,000 cars and trucks made in the United States and Canada.

TIN PLATE STEADY

The farm implement industry may make an active beginning of its new season about December 1. An earlier start would not be needed unless prospects were particularly favorable. Judged by recent small buying of sheets and wire products by farmers the season will be a light one.

Operation of the tin plate industry has been steady in the last few weeks at a little under 50 per cent, leaving tin plate as the most active finished steel line despite its drop since April.

Demand for standard or merchant pipe has increased since August, which has scarcely been the case with any other finished steel product. The real seasonal increase in pipe is to be expected in the next few weeks. Demand for oil country goods is light, but not altogether as light as three months ago.

Weekly Bank Clearings

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Bank clearings again make a slightly better showing. The total this week for leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $7,302,086,000 is 20.8 per cent less than that of last year. At New York City the amount was $4,930,400,000, a decline of 20.6 per cent from a year ago, while for all cities outside of New York $2,371,686,000 showed a reduction of 21.4 per cent. The increase this week of $2,504,419,000 or 50.2 per cent over last week reflects in part the extra day, last week's clearings being only for five days. This gain is unusually large. Making allowance for that extra day, this week's clearings are in excess of the preceding week by 27.0 per cent. Settlements through the banks include heavy payments for quarterly tax returns and for exceptionally large Treasury transactions. Similar dealings increased bank clearings very largely a year ago. Practically every city continues to report a considerable decline in bank clearings compared with last year, but at a number of them the loss is less than it has been for some time back.

Bank clearings for the week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., showing decreases compared with same period a year ago follow:

CHANCE FOR MEINE TO LEAD IN WINS

A PITTSBURGH PITCHER last year shared in the National League leadership in number of games won, Remy Kremer being one of the two slabmen to score 20 victories. The other was Pat malone, of the Cubs. This year another Pirate flinger is in line for a similar distinction, and if Heinie Meine does not actually lead the senior major circuit in number of mound triumphs he has a good chance at least to finish abreast of the foremost.

Heinie Meine

For right now no rival has a thing on Heinie in the matter of total victories. When the Buccaneer veteran registered his sixth straight win at the expense of the Braves yesterday he turned in his eighteenth decision of the campaign, and that equals the highest mark yet reached by any hurler in the loop. Only two others have won that number of games in the National, one being Ed Brandt, of the Braves, who pitched his eighteenth success in the first half of the Forbes Field dual bill yesterday. The other is Fred Fitzsimmons, of the Giants. Fritz has lost 10 games, Brandt 11, and Meine 12.

THE CLOSEST APPROACH to the victory total reached by Meine, Brandt and Fitzsimmons is 17 wins, credited to Burleigh Grimes, Bill Hallahan and Paul Derringer, of the Cards, and Jumbo Elliott, of the Phillies. In addition to Lefty Grove's 30 victories in the American, George Earnshaw, Wes Ferrell and Vernon Gomez have won 20 each and Rube Walberg has won 19.

Due for two more pitching assignments before the season closes eight days hence, Meine will have an opportunity to win 20 games for the year, but even if he fails to land the two victories needed, he will at least have an equal chance with Brandt and Fitzsimmons to finish at the head of the National League pitching parade, as those chuckers also may fall short of the 20 mark.

AND FOR CONSISTENCY and steadiness, Meine has not been surpassed in the whole league. He has won his own ball games without calling on slabmates for help. Any day he's good enough to go the route, he's generally good enough to win.

Out of 20 complete games pitched during the year, Meine has won no fewer than 17, so it will be seen that in only one of his 18 victories did he fail to work the regulation route. On that one occasion he pitched six innings.

THE FOOTBALL CURTAIN raiser at Forbes Field last night was a fine start both for Pittsburgh's pigskin season and for the new team of Duquesne University. The attendance attested an early gridiron interest in the district that presages a successful season for the sport here, and Duke supporters could not have asked for a more encouraging sign than to see a green eleven accomplish in a 13-to-7 victory over Geneva, something that only one Bluff team had previously achieved in many years of competition with the Red and Blue's oldest rival. Elmer Layden evidently has laid the groundwork for another winner despite the handicap of having lost practically all of his seasoned first-string material of a year ago. Geneva, too, has the consolation of having made a showing that was creditable in defeat and that promises much for the future.*

Clarence Overend

CLARENCE (BUDDY) OVEREND, graduate manager of athletics at Carnegie Tech, paid a flying visit to South Bend for the purpose of completing arrangements for the big Carnegie-Notre Dame football game here on October 31. A huge block of tickets will be sent to South Bend, and one of the largest crowds that ever followed the Irish out of their own stronghold will make the trip.

While conferring with the Notre Dame authorities, Manager Overend seized the opportunity to offer all the resources of his organization to aid in the successful promotion of the Knute Rockne memorial idea. The memorial movement spread like wildfire, and months after the death of the famous gridiron figure the determination to create something extraordinary in his memory is just as strong as when it was started.

INTEREST IN NEXT month's battle between Carnegie and Notre Dame is reported to be as keen in South Bend as in this district, where the fans began to send in ticket applications as early as last November.

This will be the ninth meeting of the old rivals, who started their series back in 1922, the only lapse occurring in 1927. In Pittsburgh the game has never failed to attract a capacity crowd, even in the early days before the Four Horsemen catapulted the school into the national fame that it has held ever since.

No one has been able to make money for the Madison Square Garden Corporation, of New York, as it used to be made through the promoting genius of Tex Rickard. Reports of a change in management have followed publication of the quarterly financial statement of the Garden, showing that for three months ending August 31 the corporation lost $314,853.47 and had failed for the first time to pay dividends. In addition to the New York losses, the corporation lost $33,946.30 through its subsidiary, Madison Square Garden, in Boston.

NOT ONLY 18 Lefty Grove the first southpaw ever to win 30 games in a season in the American League, but as far as the modern flingers are concerned his feat has been surpassed or equaled by just one lefthander in any major league.

That distinction belongs to a Pittsburgher, Frank Killen, of the North Side, who won 36 games against 14 defeats for the Pirates in 1893. Lady Baldwin won 42 for the Detroit Nationals in 1886, but the pitching distance was then only 50 feet. Killen also won 30 at the old distance for the Washington Nationals in 1892.

WHEN THE 1931 state convention of the Pennsylvania Division of the Izaak Walton League of America is held at Clearfield next Monday and Tuesday, the usual field day will be omitted, but in its place the Pittsburgh Casting Club will hold the second Pennsylvania state casting tournament in Carnegie Lake, Highland Park, one week from tomorrow.

There will be five events at the new casting platform, one of the finest in the country—distance fly, wet fly, dry fly accuracy, metal weight accuracy and five-eighths-ounce plug accuracy. The first event is scheduled for 10 o'clock a. m. and the last for 3 p. m. Casters are expected from Cleveland, Buffalo, Youngstown and Geneva, and some new records are being predicted.

Pete O'Hara

THE GOLF CRITICS who, in connection with the defeat of Walter Hagen by Pete O'Hara in the P. G. A. tournament at Providence this week, referred to the Westmoreland Club pro as an unknown, are not overly well up in the history of their game. Far from being an unknown, O'Hara has been one of the most prominent figures through the years of the United States open championship tournament and, though he never rose to the title, the records disclose that he has finished in the money in that big amateur tournament just about twice as often as any other man who ever competed in it. How far back he dates as a headliner in the American open may be judged from the fact that he knocked off Abe Mitchell and George Duncan when those two were young in golf. It was no ordinary entrant who eliminated Pete from this week's tourney, as Tom Creavy, the man who defeated him, was good enough to go on to the final round in which he meets Densmore Shute today.

GENE SARAZEN, BILLY BURKE ELIMINATED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 19.—What's in a name? What's in a reputation to bold and brave young America growing up? There's nothing in either. Wherefore, instead of Sarazen and a Burke in the final round of the American professional golf championship at Wannamoisett today, we have two members of the new order, one named Denny Shute, the other named Tom Creavy.

Denny Shute

Shute, the willowy Ohioan, who Thursday put his mark on Tommy Armour, the British open champion, yesterday showed a further disregard for celebrated names by stamping Billy Burke, the American open champion, with his brand in the semi-final round.

NARROW MARGIN

Shute won only by that shadowy difference of one tiny putt in a struggle that tingled with interest throughout the entire 36 holes it endured. One up was the meagre margin, but it was all-sufficient to carry the black, curly head into the final chapter and sent Billy home to nurse a heavy cold that has burdened his health since the tournament opened.

Even greater than Shute's was the exploit of Tom Creavy, late of Westchester, but now the pro at the Albany County Club. This youth of 20 summers accomplished the downfall of Gene Sarazen, 5 and 3, in a manner that presaged a brilliant future.

Sarazen, the medalist, the mighty money player, the man who had been knocking the flags over with his woods and irons, implanted no terror in young Creavy.

CREAVY COOL

Even though Sarazen started strenuously as he is wont, and 5 up as he strode toward the sixth tee, you sensed that the tall, placid-eyed youngster walking by his side was one of those young men of destiny that every so often pop their heads above the clouds in the world of sport.

There was something about this young fellow that took you back 17 years to Brookline, where again in memory you watched Ouimet bowl over those British masters of the golfing art—Vardon and Ray. Creavy wore a peaked cap and long pants, such as Francis used to affect in his kid days. He has the same quiet manner, the same dislike for vocal exercise. Ouimet then was 18; Creavy now is 20.

BUCS TO FACE FRANKHOUSE IN FINALE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Bill McKechnie, Rabbit Maranville, Hank Gowdy and the other Braves are ready to take their farewell bow at the Oakland Orchard. The Tribal warriors and the Pirates will stage their final clash of the season this afternoon. On the play of the whole summer, the Boston boys own quite an edge over the Freebooters, the Braves have copped the laurel wreath a dozen times in the 21 battles finished. More than incidentally, the battles fought by these intersectional rivals have been high spots of the National League race. Many of the fights have been decided by a solitary run and in nearly every instance the result was in doubt right down to the ninth inning.

The Braves went into their worst slump of the season immediately after the Buccos left Boston last month. The Tribe and the Freebooters had just played four games in which the verdict was decided by one run in each instance, three of the games being won by the Boston entry. The Braves then did a folding act that threw them into sixth place, but they immediately reached their stubborn stride as soon as they landed here to take on the Pirates. Two doubleheaders have been staged and divided in the past two days.

LAST SATURDAY GAME

Manager Ens of the home team, said today he would send either Remy Kremer or Ervin Brame to the mound in the final clash with the New Englanders. Skipper Bill will counter with Fred Frankhouse, who has turned in some fine twirling for the Bostonese this summer. The contest will be the last Saturday engagement on the card of the Buccos.

Eddie Brandt, ace of the Boston team and one of the ranking lefthanders of the game, and Heinie Meine, Pirate righthand star, each recorded his eighteenth victory of the season yesterday as the two clubs split a dual bill. Brandt triumphed over Larry French in the early fight, while Meine won a decision from Wee Willie Sherdel in the nightcap. The scores were 6 to 2 and 4 to 1.

Sharing honors of the day with the winning pitchers were Pie Traynor, Rabbit Maranville, Lloyd Waner and Walter Berger.

DORMONT NINE EVENS SERIES

The City League baseball championship series was squared again last night when the Dormont Club defeated Book Shoe, 6 to 3, in their fifth game, at Olympia Park. Carroll hurled shutout ball after relieving Martin in the third inning. Geisler's homer in the third frame gave the Dormonters a lead that never was overtaken.

The deciding game is slated for this evening on the Dormont High School Field at 5:30 o'clock. The score:

Dukes Show Promise; Beat Geneva, 13-7

An attempted smart play that went wrong and a sustained march of 44 yards enabled Duquesne to defeat Geneva in the opening gridiron encounter of the 1931 season at Forbes Field last night. A crowd estimated at 15,000 looked on as the green Duke eleven scored a 13-7 triumph over the Covenanters, the second that has been landed by the local institution over the Beaver Falls school in 30 years.

For an inaugural and especially a game that meant so much and that brought together such hectic rivals, the contest passed with a fair mark. Both elevens presented many rough spots that will have to be polished off and kinks that must be ironed out.

Duquesne evidenced a lack of cohesion, the natural result of inexperience, but gave promise of developing into a pretty nifty machine. Geneva presented a dangerous aerial offensive, but was woefully weak in clipping and blocking and showed very plainly that Coach Harpster must dig up a ball toting threat with some speed.

GENEVA SCORES FIRST

Geneva's aerial game was good for a touchdown in the first period, and kept the Dukes guessing for the entire first half. In the second half, however, the Duquesne defense clicked almost to perfection, covered the Geneva pass receivers in fine style and the linemen sifted through and hurried Grahame, the star southpaw tosser, on practically every attempt.

After an exchange of kicks in the opening period, Grahame rifled a pass to Cliff Aultman, good for 45 yards, and placed the ball in scoring position. The spinner and two tries at the line added 20 yards more to the Geneva total and then Grahame muffed a pass from Aultman on the goal line. On the next play, Grahame dropped back and whipped the ball to Kent Sole, Geneva right end. He caught it, but fumbled when he was hit by a Duquesne defenseman, but the officials ruled momentary possession and the touchdown stood. Grahame then booted a placement, with Aultman holding the ball, for the extra point.

The Dukes tied the count late in the second quarter. Geneva secured possession of the ball on its own 39-yard line. Aultman, taking the ball on the old end-around play, attempted to pass, but was chased far back and then, instead of playing it safe and taking the loss, he threw it squarely into the arms of Duquesne's left half, the speedy DeLuca. The latter chased 32 yards for the score. Red Sullivan, the diminutive quarter, booted a placement goal for the tying point.

Had Aultman succeeded in grounding the pass, everything would have been lovely. He threw it too far and too hard, however, and the beans were spilled.

The game was won in the third quarter when the Dukes smashed

ROSS PLEASED WITH BOBCAT MATERIAL

(This is one of a series of articles written by sports writers of Pittsburgh newspapers covering the fall sports prospects of the Pittsburgh district colleges. The articles appear Monday.)

By JESS CARVER

Coach [illegible] of Washington and Jefferson, has had a total of nine years of football experience as coach here at Wesleyan. Cecil (Tiny) Ross, in his nine years, has won 59 games, lost 19 and tied 5. His record is one of which he may well be proud.

Ross has had a number of championship teams and has developed many players who have gone on to fame in the professional ranks. Last year, with a team which was picked to finish in the cellar position, Ross developed a team which was the class of the Pennsylvania Conference and which defeated Washington and Jefferson, Geneva and Waynesburg, all of which were picked to finish ahead of Wesleyan.

Ross has had a number of All-Americans, the most outstanding of whom was Bill Kern, who is now playing with the Philadelphia Eagles. Kern was one of the greatest players ever developed in the Pittsburgh district. Ross has had a number of players who have been placed on All-Conference teams, and has had a number of players who have been drafted by professional teams.

Ross has had a number of players who have been coaches at other colleges. Among these are Bill Kern, who is now coaching at Geneva College, and Bill Hartman, who is now coaching at Bucknell University

No Man Will Trust You if You Don't Trust Yourself

She loves him—

Yet she lies to him.

And the worst and most puzzling part of it, she lies when lying is not necessary. She lies about small, trivial things. She doesn't intend to. But the lie slips out before she thinks. Then she is sorry and ashamed, but it's too late . . .

"Am I just a born liar, or what?" she moans.

Ever see anyone like that? Sure you have. Maybe your own tongue trips you in the same way . . .

Why? And what's the remedy?

Listen—

Dear Sally:

I guess you'll think I'm just a nut when you read this letter, but, honestly, I don't know what is the matter with me, and I am getting so I can hardly stand myself. I want to know just what you think of me.

I am very much in love with a very fine man . . . a man who is kind, truthful and wonderful to me . . honestly, I do love him. Yet, I constantly make him very unhappy by telling him small untruths about things . . . . telling them when the truth would do just as well . . . telling them about things that are really not important at all.

WANTS TO STOP HABIT

Why I do this, I don't know, as I love him and I wouldn't think of ever actually deceiving him or cheating on him, and I don't want to hurt him. Yet I'll tell these lies to him. It seems as if ever since I was a child I have lied like that. It is always about things that don't amount to much. I tell the truth about bigger things that do mean everything to me. And that is the part which puzzles me the most. These lies just slip out, without thinking. And after I've told them, I am dreadfully sorry, but I am ashamed to say that I haven't told the truth.

Am I just a born liar, or what? How can I break myself? It makes me very unhappy. I believe it was caused, maybe, by my early surroundings. But please don't think I blame anyone. I don't. Only I want to break myself of it if I can.

FIBIA.

Are you "just a born liar?"

No, sister, you're not! There ain't no such animal! No human being is born a liar. Liars are made . . . and they're mostly made by just plain, ornery cowardice. Or an equally ornery desire to show off.

CHILDISH TRAIT

Perhaps, when you were a small child, you had reason to be afraid to tell the truth . . . or you wanted to gain attention by telling the small happenings of the day in some way that would reflect glory on yourself . . . and when you grew up, you only partly grew up. You didn't grow out of that childish habit of shrinking—or boasting. That may have been the way it began. But that is no excuse for continuing to lie now. You're a woman now. Act like one. Summon your grown-up pride, and will, and go after this thing!

Don't go after just the lying! Go after the thing that makes the lying—that secret childish trait which shows itself in these trivial, unnecessary "fibs." You don't lie in the big emergencies because you face these emergencies with your grown up self. But in your "off moments" you turn child again.

And what will be the result if you continue to be part child? The result will be that this man inevitably will despise you—and leave you. And he should!

Children are lovable when they inhabit child bodies. Children are dangerous and vicious when they inhabit man and woman bodies.

No man will dare trust you, if you can't trust yourself. And you will never trust yourself until you grow up all over.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

X-Ray and Its Value to Medical Science

On November 8, 1895 after many trying unsuccessful experiments, Dr. Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen discovered the X-ray. This discovery has enabled man to combat many diseases and to extend life when without it, it would have been impossible.

Dr Copeland

When this discovery was announced there were all sorts of misconception regarding its nature and uses. People at first were under the impression that by means of a certain lens it would be possible to visualize anything and everything anywhere. In fact a bill was introduced in one of the state legislatures, proposing to prohibit the use of X-rays and opera glasses at theaters.

The medical profession quickly realized the tremendous value this new discovery offered in their work. At first, of course, not all the results obtained were gratifying. In fact, many physicians lost their lives as a result of continuous exposure to the X-ray. Their sacrifice for humanity has not been in vain, for today, only as a result of many years of experimentation, the X-ray is pretty well perfected. Under present day procedure, there is no danger, either to the patient or to the doctor in taking an X-ray.

At first the X-ray was used to locate foreign bodies in the body, such as bullets and needles, and to study fractures of the bones. It is now used in every branch of medicine.

In dentistry, abscess of the teeth and infections of the jawbones are immediately recognized by means of a simple X-ray. In surgery, it has become so important that very few operations are now undertaken without a preliminary study by means of the X-ray machine. Not only does this marvelous discovery reveal fractured bones and foreign bodies, but it will bring to light diseases of the stomach, intestines and urinary systems.

It actually points to the location of tumors and cancers. It has been used even in obstetrics, where it may show the size of the pelvis and thus eliminate many of the dangers of childbirth.

In medicine, it is of value in the early diagnosis of rickets, pneumonia and tuberculosis. It has saved thousands and thousands of lives by the recognition of unsuspected tuberculosis where, in its early stages, there are no visible signs except by the use of the X-ray.

Indeed, by the use of this agent tremendous advance has been made in medicine. It has saved thousands of lives and prevented many serious diseases.

Children's Parties

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

The mother who does her own work usually regards a party for her child as merely something which makes a good deal of extra labor and fussing. The mother who has help is rather prone to call in some of her friends to watch the antics of the youngsters during this period of social activity. In short, to one type of mother the children's party is an extra job while to the other it is a show put on for the benefit of a few adults. In either case the full import and value of children's parties is lost.

Much can be learned while having a glorious time, and the child's party should accomplish this along with giving him pleasure.

When you give a party for children let it BE for the children. Let the small host or hostess so far as is possible, run the thing himself or herself. Make the child feel responsible for the good time of his young guests. Let him or her help plan the games and refreshments and take part in the actual work of preparation.

Keep within hailing distance, but not much in evidence. Suggest games when things lag, but let the young host conduct them.

Give him, beforehand, a knowledge of a host's part in the whole scheme; for instance, make him aware that every child should have his attention at various times, particularly the one who sits back and seems shy. For making guests comfortable is the essence of hospitality.

Let him know that, in his delight over ice-cream and his favorite cake, it is the nice thing to remember that he has guests and to keep an eye open to see that each is served; to offer his guests more of the dainties he is apt to enjoy selfishly without your suggestion along this line.

A party for children has a big social value to him. It teaches him to be courteous and thoughtful, to mingle easily with a group in his own home—that is, UNLESS mother takes so much responsibility that he feels none whatever, and gets merely a selfish pleasure out of it.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Cosmetics chemists are offering interesting foundation creams; lovely pinky froths that are rubbed into the complexion until they disappear. They make powder stay where it is put.

A cold compress placed around the neck will call a halt on a throat that is going stringy. Pour witch hazel in a saucer and add an ice cube. Let stand for three or four minutes. Dip in a piece of absorbent cotton, place the cotton on the neck, cover with a large dry towel. Benefits come from the reaction of blood streams.

Sculptured curls fringing the rear of the coiffure are a luxury only for the sweet things who have leisure. They are menaced when the wash cloth makes its rounds. One method of preservation is a cap net, slipped over the head, lifting the precious curlicues up and away, safe from the soapy flood. Marquise curls, popular with new lids that bounce up at one side of the head and slam down over the other eye, are convenient. You can buy them at the beauty shop. They come in groups and have little wire handles which hide away among the homegrown locks.

CONTRARIWISE!

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Do we choose our loves because they are like us? —our men who are destined to be lover, companion, co-laugher, partner, friend, and, still lover if things pan out the way the June-moon and Love want them to? Though husbands and wives grow many times to look alike after the golden-wedding-day we are told and have sometimes seen with our own eyes—I do not believe the happiest marriages start that way;—that is, necessarily between people who are alike.

Our friends are gathered Here and There—for what we admire in them—not for what in them is like us. I grant, before we begin, and we all know this, that if we are musical, we like the man we marry to "like a tune," even if he doesn't understand it. If we get a great deal out of the beauty of the world, we turn to the man who feels it too, even though his sensibilities run to model-making, and ours to appreciating the sunset.

Our friends are gathered here and there—and make up in the end a bright bouquet of assorted flowers. And we touch each one with a pleasure in its different quality. The tall loves the short, the frivolous the grave, the glittering the sober, the cut-up the listener, and each one of us likes all of these to deck our dinner-table when the best friends are drawn up there.

The man I stroll with, and read with, and laugh with, and work with, and I, amused ourselves making note of the women we saw out walking with the pet dog one warm twilight near the park, when, lonely for a little boy who was luckily for himself perched that moment on the side of Pikes Peak where the cool winds "do blo-o-o-ow," we were dining in town. And never but once did we see a girl or woman with the dog who would harmonize with her style in line and coloring. That once, an ancient black-clothed lady went by with an ancient black terrier, both low to the ground with the pressure of years, both solemnly slow and agedly thoughtful.

"They looked exactly alike. Whether they had in the beginning is a question. But every other lady and pet': the small stout girl with a turn-up nose was in the train of an aristocrat of dogdom—a long and sprinv Russian borzoi. Her name was probably Dot—and his was Boris. The tweedy girl with the severe hair and the cigaret and the dog-skin gloves —she strode before a bobbling poodle in sheeps-wool and a bell. The ample, showy girl escorted a clean-cut, gazelle-like toy hound. The long thin girl, lengthy legs, willowy arms, lily neck, with a fly-away gait, led that sober, contemplative, chunkey philosopher—the "Scotty." And so it went—all contrariwise.

So people choose their marriage partners—if what I see I can believe. Not to match—; but like separate notes on the keyboard combined in sympathy, they often (we're ignoring Reno) make complete harmony when made one.

Two very different people will clasp hands in love, and some mysterious bond is plaited between them that makes them laugh at the same things, like the same things, be happy with the same things. Yet they are tall—and short, blue—and brown, plump—and thin, speedy—and slow, introspective —and simple.

Yet cheek by cheek they make a harmony in color, heart and spirit, in Love's garden.

This pick of the girls with their pets is only a humorous illustration of our leaning toward things and people that do NOT match.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Continues Amazing Revelations

"Do you mean," I said slowly when I had recovered from my first astonishment at Mary's words, "that Mr. Underwood told you he thought Charles Owen had marriage with Marion on his mind?

"I mean exactly that, my surprised auntie," Mary replied affectionately. "It seems he overheard Carolyn teasing Marion one day during the Christmas vacation—oh he didn't mean to eavesdrop, of course, being Mr. Underwood, but I don't imagine he stopped his ears up with cotton and went suddenly away from there after he heard the first words. He kept his eyes and his ears open after that and made up his mind as to the scheme Foxy Charlie had in his mind, and he asked me to use my ears and eyes to supplement his with the general idea of my keeping tab on Marion and reporting to him if anything happened I thought he ought to know."

"Have you—has there?" I began lamely.

"Not a tangible thing—so far," she replied. "Nothing you could put your finger on. You see Marion is so taken up with Ronald that Uncle Charlie has to work overtime to get a word in edgeways with her. But you can see, can't you, even with the insulation Ronald gives her, that there's need of another shock absorber in Marion's neighborhood, and I'm so good that you could put me in a used car. Hello! That's a thought."

She put her first finger to her forehead in burlesqued meditation, then looked up at me with a grin.

"Isn't there something in the Bible or Shakespeare or the almanac about the saw that cuts something or other with both edges?"

"I'm afraid I don't remember the adage," I told her laughingly. "Perhaps if you'd explain your meaning——"

"Sorry. Can't do that," she said with a decision that seemed odd in conjunction with the levity of her manner. "You see, I don't know if the thought will ever materialize. But if it does, I'll promise that you shall be the first to know about it. Will that do?"

"It will have to, I imagine," I told her, laughing. "But," putting up my hand with a warning gesture, half playful, half serious, "remember your failing, and take a second thought before you act on the first."

"I don't care for second thoughts," she crooned in an atrocious parody, "but they'll be my weakness now."

"Let us hope so," I said, returning the wave of the hand she gave me as I went out of the door.

I went back to the veranda slowly, puzzled as much by Mary's manner, as by her cryptic words. I knew that some plan for foiling Charles Owen's scheme was stirring in her versatile brain, something which the words 'shock absorber' had quickened into life. But, knowing Mary's powers of secretiveness, I gave up the problem with a shrug of my shoulders and went back to the veranda where Harry Underwood and Lillian, one on either side of my small daughter, were waving their hands and uttering the foolish little sounds with which people try to attract the attention of small babies. They stopped with ludicrous suddenness as I came through the open door, then Harry exclaimed with an air of infinite relief:

"Oh, it's only Ruby Pearl's mother. I thought it was Katrinka coming back. If she caught us goo-ing at this baby she'd give us 'what-for.'"

Again that unworthy irritation stirred in my heart and sharpened my voice unconsciously as I answered:

"Why do you call her that ridiculous name? You know it is only the idea of Junior and Roderick promoted by Jerry Thcer, and that she will have a real name——"

"When?" Mr. Underwood asked significantly.

"Before tomorrow, I promised recklessly, and determined that I would make the pledge a true one if it lay within the bounds of human possibility to accomplish it.

"In that case," he replied grandiloquently, "I promise in return to drop 'Ruby Pearl' and 'Opal Violet' into the wastebasket as soon as I hear the real moniker you intend giving the kid. But until then I'm going to make them my theme song, if for no other reason than to prod you into doing your duty by this little lady. It's the crime of the century, leaving anything as adorable as this without a name."

He rose and bent from the waist in a low bow to my daughter.

"Farewell, Ruby Pearl!" he said, then turned to me with twinkling eyes.

"You hear?" he asked. "Prod number one."

"Suppose you switch off the phonograph for a minute or two," his wife said testily, "and give Madge a chance to tell you what she found out from Mary."

"Mary will be very glad to go to the house party with Marion," I said.

"Good!" Harry Underwood approved heartily, but Lillian looked at me with keen, inquiring eyes.

"Now, I wonder," she said, "whether her decision is the result of your eloquence, or because of something in Noel's letter which she does not like."

Household Hints

When only half the orange, lemon or grapefruit is used, cover the cut surface with a piece of waxed or oiled paper and it will keep the fruit fresh and juicy for several days.

Instead of throwing away the long-handled broom when its straw has become worn away, tie a piece of felt, carpet or flannel cloth about the head of the broom, and you will find it makes a most effective floor polisher. (An old felt hat would serve the purpose). Such a polisher will keep the linoleum in good condition.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

An Invitation?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If a young lady has had an occasional date with a young man and later has received an invitation to a formal dance in which is enclosed the young man's personal card, is she correct in thinking that he is requesting the privilege of escorting her to the dance? B. B.

I should not think that this would mean that the young man is inviting her to the dance. Surely he would make his invitation more definite than this.

You do not say what kind of dance it is to be, but if, for instance, it is a dance given by an organization to which the young man belongs, he probably wishes you to be invited, and wishes you to invite your own escort. In other words, his card means that the invitation has been sent at his suggestion, and not that he himself is inviting you. Often, as you know, when an organization is to give a dance or an entertainment of any kind, the members are requested to hand in a list of friends who they think might be interested in coming.

An Embarrassment of Riches

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married next Christmas and both my father and my fiance insist upon buying me a cedar chest for my trousseau. Will you kindly tell me which of the two is supposed to buy it? E.

Here is an embarrassment of riches, indeed, and a generous supply of generous-thoughted gentlemen in your life!

Since there isn't any definite suggestion as to which one is to give this gift-of-sentiment to you, do you think that it would be possible to ask them if they would be willing to combine their contributions to this gift? This would make the gift doubly precious, and I like the idea very much. I hope that they will!

If you think that this plan will not be possible, then I suggest that you ask your fiance if he will mind if you allow your father to give you this chest, since it is to contain things that you will bring from your father's home to your new home. And there are so many other things that your fiance can give you.

SUNDAY SUN-TELEGRAPH

CITY'S BIGGEST COMIC PAPER TOMORROW

Sunday Sun-Telegraph's New Four-color Magazine Makes Strip of 130 Feet

Tomorrow is the big day for the comics. Tomorrow is the big day for the children and grown-ups in countless thousands who laugh with the characters and their rollicking activities in the comic strips. Tomorrow the first 16 page comic magazine in all the world, and all in rich colors, appears as a part of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Simultaneously in the metropolitan cities where Hearst Sunday newspapers are published the new comic weekly PUCK makes its debut. To print a section like this alone calls for publication the likes of newspapers that have been engaged in the business already. Special staff. Special plant. Special paper for it. And the new comic section has been printed in the Hearst manufacturing plants.

GREATEST IN NUMBER

It is a fact, nowhere else in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph or in any Pittsburgh or regional newspaper that can be found 16 pages of comics in color as in this section. There is an added fact that interests every Sunday Sun-Telegraph reader—at least 48 more strips of comics than are found in any other Pittsburgh newspaper.

Tomorrow Sunday Sun-Telegraph Comic Weekly will present the greatest array of comics in colors of international fame ever assembled in one newspaper. All the old favorites will be on hand to make you laugh and you will get acquainted with a host of new comic characters.

Now just a few facts about this big new 16-page section. If all of the comic strips in this section were cut out and pasted end to end they would make a series of "funnies" nearly 130 feet long. If all the pages were separated they would completely cover the floor of an average size room in any home. If all the comic characters that appear in the 32 comics in this 16-page magazine were placed in a parade it would number 226 fun makers. What a parade that would be!

With two exceptions all of the comics that appear in this big new section tomorrow appear in foreign countries in the native languages.

It is also interesting to note that the Sunday Sun-Telegraph comics have a powerful influence in the toy and novelty trade as children now are favoring toys inspired by their favorite comics.

ARTISTS DRAW—MILLION

The aggregate income of the artists who create the comics for the Sunday Sun-Telegraph is much more than a million dollars a year. It pays—sometimes—to be funny.

Songs named after many of these comics have had a reigning popularity. Popeye the Sailorman." Barney Google," "Tillie the Toiler," Bringing Up Father" and others.

Many have a great popularity in motion pictures notably Felix.

And several of them have found favor with radio audiences while quite a number have been popularized in comedy on the speaking stage.

There have probably been more performances of "Bringing Up Father" with Jiggs and Maggie than of any other comic in the theaters.

Man, Unable to Get Job, Hangs Himself

John Lutheran, 54, of 1035 Worthington avenue, Clairton, despondent, police said, for failing to provide for his wife and three children due to unemployment, was found hanging from a tree in Shady Park near his home this morning. Mr. and Mrs. J. Cobark, Lutherans, neighbors, discovered the body when walking through the park. Clairton police said that their department and welfare organizations have been supplying food and clothing to the destitute family from time to time.

Trolley, Patrol Rush Man to Hospital

A street car and a patrol wagon rushed Clayton Gehman, 27, of Dorseytown, Pa., to Allegheny General Hospital after he had been struck by a train that Etna last night.

Gehman's right arm almost severed, was found lying near the tracks by two men. They carried the victim to East Ohio street, where they flagged a southbound Etna street car. When the car reached the city line the victim was transferred to the patrol and hurried to the hospital.

Party Names Sought In Ward Campaigns

Three petitions for pre-emption of party names in Constable contests were filed in Common Pleas Court. William Richardson, and others asked to use the name Liberal Party for nomination of a constable to be elected in the 21st Ward in November. Gurnish and others asked for Independent Party for Constable also in the First Ward. Karl Kalmon and others asked of the Republican party name for Constable in the Eleventh Ward.

gotball Uniform Theft Suspect Freed

Involved in the theft of two football uniforms from the Duquesne University football squad, Thomas Morton, 21, of 5139 Landsdowne street, was discharged today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court when university officials refused to prosecute. The uniforms were recovered.

Suspects Gets Free Plane Ride and His Freedom

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (AP)—Joseph P. Madden, thanked Heaven for the skyline.

He had been brought here in the cabin of a plane, a prisoner in custody of a bailiff, to be handcuffed to a witness chair. The witness: Joseph Himmel, in whose home Madden was arrested.

Himmel identified Madden as the man who kidnaped him to collect $50,000 ransom. The defendant, Madden, was arrested in Detroit, and when he was arraigned the case was dropped because no one was ready to prosecute. The hotel had paid $1,400 for Madden's transportation.

Park's Opportunity!

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, just renominated by the voters of Allegheny County, has immediately the opportunity to justify the confidence they have reposed in him. He also has the chance to confound those who opposed him during the campaign because of his reluctance to perform what seemed to be the plain duty of a prosecutor.

He has called the grand jury to investigate the charge that efforts are being made to cheat County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern out of a nomination he appears to have won over Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong. Suspicion surrounding developments in the courthouse, where the Armstrong machine is in control, warrants such an inquiry. But no cursory, surface examination will suffice. The District Attorney must go to the bottom of this situation.

Seldom has an official been given such a sudden chance to prove his worth as has fallen to Mr. Park. The future estimate the county will have of him rests in his own hands.

Desperate!

The Armstrong Organization, Battling for Its Life, Is Quite Capable of Stealing the Election

In the face of complete unofficial returns showing Charles C. McGovern the winner of one of the two Republican nominations for County Commissioner, Senator William D. Mansfield having won the other, the nomination of Joseph G. Armstrong is claimed by his adherents. If Armstrong is "counted in," it will be done by fraud, McGovern answers. Certainly the Armstrong organization is quite capable of stealing the election.

Armstrong controls the county election machinery. He personally appointed members of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes and the Bureau of Elections. The Assessment Board has already been caught in fraud, having permitted the enrollment of thousands of "phantoms," and the Bureau of Elections has been far from zealous to insure an honest vote.

The members of both these boards and a host of others who have been on the county payroll for years are liable to lose their jobs if Armstrong loses. Some of them are reported to be fairly frantic at the prospect. They will fight desperately to prevent it. The plot of Armstrong gangsters from the South Side to raid the Courthouse and steal ballots indicates the lengths to which they are willing to go.

There are several things which will make the theft a little more difficult than it would ordinarily be. Gov. Pinchot is on McGovern's side, and has already helped to prevent fraud by his Registration Commission appointments and his sending of state troopers to Pittsburgh. District Attorney Park shows a determination to prosecute election crooks, and the elections committee of the Bar Association is doing yeoman service.

Another encouraging thing is that the Coyne- Kline machine is not going out of its way to help the Armstrong organization. Witness the arrest of the Armstrong Courthouse raiders by Kline's police. Some of Senator Coyne's followers feel bitter towards Armstrong because he did not choose the Senator as his running mate.

Armstrong may, by foul means, get the nomination: but we believe there is enough intelligence and integrity in Allegheny County to see that he does not get the election. And even if he should be elected, it is doubtful if he will be able to dominate either of the other two members as he dominated E. V. Babcock. His control of the Board of Commissioners is nearing an end.

If it comes to the worst and McGovern is "counted out," there will be an appeal to the courts. If that fails, McGovern may still be elected on an independent ticket, as he was four years ago. And possibly he will carry another independent into office along with him, with Mansfield as the minority Commissioner and Armstrong out.

The people of Allegheny County have rarely been stirred up over any political development as they are over the reported plot to steal the election from McGovern. Some hotheads, indignant over the plot, say if it succeeds the people ought to burn down the Courthouse, while others vow they will never vote again. Such foolishness is to be deplored.

The gang, of course, would like nothing better than that independents should stay away from the polls. Gang victories are due as much to the neglect of civic slackers to vote as they are to cheating. This is no time for honest citizens to become discouraged. They have just given a fine demonstration of what they can accomplish without organization.

Former Senator C. M. Barr makes a good suggestion in proposing that the decent people of the county form organizations in each of the 932 election districts to safeguard what they have gained in the primary. The advocates of good government must co-operate and keep everlastingly on the alert if election cheating is to be prevented and public affairs are to be administered honestly.

The exciting political situation will be reviewed in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph by an expert, Mark Shields, who is in close touch with what is going on and has inside sources of information. The Sunday Sun-Telegraph will also have other important and exclusive features. Especially notable is the new comic weekly magazine supplement "Puck."

"Puck" is the largest and best comic supplement ever published in Pittsburgh. It consists of 16 pages with 32 comics, all in color—an increase of 100 per cent in the size of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph's previous comic section. The American Weekly magazine section, with an important article on "Mother Nature's Practical Jokes," and the Color Gravure section, with a dashing battle scene and portraits of beautiful women, will also be worth while.

The benefactions of the Buhl Foundation come thick and fast. The model homes being built on Mt. Washington are the Foundation's most interesting project, perhaps, but there is great possibility for good also in the grant of $30,700 that has just been made to the University of Pittsburgh to establish courses in field training for graduate students in social work.

Throw Open the Gates!

With American Legion posts throughout the country demanding modification of Prohibition as ONE STEP toward economic betterment, and with thousands of indignant citizens denouncing the Prohibition crime wave, SOMETHING may happen in the next Congress.

Petitions, signed by millions of names and presenting the reasons for LEGALIZED BEER AND LIGHT WINES, are to be laid before the Government.

As M. J. McDonough, president of the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, told the Legion's conference on unemployment:

"Here is an industry which, if revived, would put 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 men to work within six months."

Here Is a Real Wild Native

No Civilization Has Ever Spoiled Him.

A DWELLER IN THE 'ISLANDS OF HAPPINESS' WHO NEVER BOWED DOWN TO WOOD OR STONE

This creature, whose look of wildness strikes you, dwells on one of the Mentawei Islands, about 100 miles west of Sumatra.

These peaceful islands are called the "Islands of Happiness," because civilization has never disturbed them.

Christianity, Hinduism, Mohammedanism have never been there to explain to the natives that there are many good reasons why they should expect to go to hell. They don't even know about hell.

No Christian ship has ever taken venereal disease or smallpox to the islands.

The natives, who have never invented any idols or "graven images" of their own, have a religion of nature worship, making offerings in the forest to "nature spirits." They have no temples, only the forests. For religious ceremonies they have dances, in which they imitate the movements of animals, which seems to give them considerable satisfaction.

The face of this Mentawean is published here because it is so different from the faces about us.

This is a young man, with strange linear tattooing, flowers in his hair, and decorations for some kind of a festival.

He does not look the sort that you would like to meet alone in the forest on a dark night. Yet he belongs to a peaceful race. Nobody has attacked them for many years. Therefore, they attack nobody.

In his eyes you see what a difference there is between such a man, always alert, in the mysterious forest, and a "civilized being" living in a big city, on the alert only for an automobile that might run over him or a telephone call.

Curiously enough, this person is probably your distant relative, if you happen to belong to the Caucasian branch of the human race.

Jean Jacques Rousseau, seeing perfection in such creatures as these, urged upon us "a return to nature." He believed the savage had been perfect until civilization spoiled him, and told us we should all go back to a savage condition.

All nonsense. This man lives and dies, knowing nothing. He is not worried by taxes and depressions; on the other hand—he is not stimulated to endeavor by ambition.

He has himself tattooed, fixes up his little necklace, keeps his spear bright, his bows and arrows in good order, and that is all his accomplishment.

We have many other things to do, to see, to dread, to suffer and to hope for, and we would not change with the interesting savage.

Marry-Go-Round

Woman's Fatal Weakness

When a man's love dies a sudden and unexpected death it is usually due to asphyxiation from the monoxide gas of a woman's jealousy.

* * *

Jealousy is the serpent that lurks under the rose of love in nearly every little Eden.

* * *

A man's love is seldom starved to death or frozen to death—it is nearly always stifled to death. Blowing the cold winds of indifference on his passion merely fans the flames. But one touch of jealousy acts like a fire-extinguisher.

A man is never as jealous as a woman because once he has permitted a woman to love him, he cannot, in his sublime self-confidence, imagine how she could possibly want anything better.

* * *

Jealousy is the admission of an inferiority complex, and as far as a woman is concerned no man has an inferiority complex. It is never a mystery to him why a woman should love him. The only thing that could astonish him would be to discover that she had STOPPED loving him.

* * *

When a woman shows the first spark of jealousy, she flatters the other woman, and insults herself. Many a man would never know that he had ceased to love a woman if she did not keep reminding him of it.

* * *

A man may be jealous of another man. But a woman is subconsciously jealous of EVERYTHING.

* * *

She is jealous of a man's business which keeps his mind off her, of his club which takes him away from her evenings, of his golf, his cronies, his mother, his sisters, his interest in books or baseball—and sometimes, even of his appetite for a good beefsteak.

* * *

It is positively STIFLING! Woman's desire to absorb every corner of a man's heart and mind and thoughts is the tie that binds and binds and BINDS, until it chokes him.

A man is like a cat, he cannot be tied. And nothing so quickly gives him that TIED feeling as a woman's jealousy.

* * *

A woman may tread all over a man's heart with cruelty, selfishness, coquetry and caprice, without killing his love, but at the first tiny breath of jealousy it will flicker out and gasp its last.

* * *

Man is a free, free soul, filled with the spirit of Pan. As long as he feels unfettered, he may not care to roam; but at the first touch of a leash, the first suspicion of a "claim," he is off—to the other woman.

* * *

Jealousy and "It" cannot exist under the same marcel wave, for "It" is based upon perfect self-assurance. And jealousy is always an admission of self-doubt. If you can't have faith in a man, at least have faith in YOURSELF. Don't hand the other woman all the trumps in the pack of being jealous!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—If you started off the day trying to brush your teeth with a strip of shaving cream, motored to the country, got caught in a seven-hour traffic blockade and had only 15 minutes to turn out a column, what would you do?

Speak up and quit rolling your handkerchief into a little ball. Well, that is what's facing me. And will that tittuppy little squirt with a middle hair part quit biting his nails? I'm so twitchy as it is I'm on the verge of one of my spells. Fifteen minutes—no, thirteen now, and not a thought.

It's somewhat a travesty of fair play that I, who have done nothing but skip through the world scattering sweetness, light and a modicum of cigaret ashes, should have to face such an ordeal. Just sit here in a frenzy of agony. Nothing to encourage me but the gaunt tick-tock of a clock.

By the way, it's funny about that clock. One can look at it and tell the exact time in any part of the world. It is just 4 p. m. in New York. Over in Hawaii it is 11 o'clock. In Berlin it is 10 p. m. And on the Canary Islands—I'm glad they clocked that up—it is 8 o'clock.

Incidentally, will that red-headed flapper, smoking a cigaret and reading The New Yorker in the third row, stand up and tell us just where are the Canary Islands? You have been sitting there sneering as though I might be dirt under your feet. And what I know about your uncle!

This is Saturday evening—an evening when most of us cast off burdens of the week and relax. Many of you are having the bath drawn this very moment and in another hour will be plushed up and ready for the Savoy, Plaza, Pierre's or St. Regis.

Later you may be seeing Harry Richman and Jack Pearl cavort in Mark Hellinger's sketch. "That's Africa!" Or watch the feather-footed Fred Astaire in one of those loping dances. Or maybe see the guest condemned by his doctor to die in Grand Hotel. You fatheads don't know how lucky you are.

* * *

But go ahead. Have a good time, make merry, dance the night away with flying feet. Become satiated with jazz, drink your fill of rotten manhood destroying hooch, puff nicotine poisoned smoke. Sniff coke, if you want. But remember, tomorrow is another day and if you think lugging around one of those hippo headaches is fun, that's your affair. Not mine. Anyway I haven't time to sermonize. I've got to whip out a column.

* * *

One thing I might add, however. And that is: As a matter of fact I'll say nothing. Why should I give all of you advice? A heap you care. I can squat here trying to sweat out a column until I petrify and what do you do? Go traipsing off to the restaurant, to the theater and the night clubs. Swigging gin and dancing the polka.

Russia used to be the gayest country in the world—champagne, vodka, peppermint candy, shameless Paris dancers, bestial palace orgies, mad dukes, charades and paranoiac duchesses. One long day and night of sensuous pleasures. And you know what happened to Russia, don't you? Give up? Well, they are dumping wheat. That is what they are doing. As a matter of fact while writing this one of them opened the window and dumped a peck of wheat right beside my chair. Yesterday while passing a Russian restaurant I saw the head American dumper and he was in a nasty mood. It wouldn't surprise me if Fifth avenue found itself hip-deep in wheat by Monday. Maybe not Monday, for the Soviet might not permit Sunday dumping, but by the middle of the week anyway. And won't that be ducky?

* * *

But a lot you mind. You'd rather listen to Tommy Lyman sing or hear Texas Guinan call you sucker in some woozy night club. Later many of you will be eating sandwiches at Reuben's—sandwiches named for Mrs. Fiske, Jack Osterman and other swells—While I'm here writing in the cause of Art. When I finish this I'll be only a wilted flower. For hours afterward I just droop around with my tongue out panting like 'his—aa! aa! aa!' But you wouldn't understand such a creative collapse. Not you! You are too intent on your hellish pleasures.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She was 19 and pretty as only a girl called Ruth Callahan can be.

A gay, soft little colleen—wild rose cheeks, tumbled curls, starry eyes—is that the picture you're seeing? That's the picture you should be seeing when you think of her lovely youth . . .

But that wasn't the picture the cops saw when, several hours later, they gathered her in. The roses were faded by then—the stars drowned—the curls tangled in a sour mat. Ruth was drunk. And small wonder! For actual official reckoning she had consumed—

Four quarts of ale—
Three gin rickies—
Nine Tom Collinses—
Two highballs—
Several beers.

"How awful!" you cry. "A sweet young girl like that! No wonder we need Prohibition."

Don't worry, stranger. Ruth had Prohibition. And nothing but. That was what ailed her. She was chock full of Prohibition. She wasn't on an orgy demonstrating Flaming Youth. She was just a Nice—Young—Girl—Doing Her—Bit—For—My Volstead, by soaking up evidence in speakeasies. At a wage of $10 per arrest for evidence thus obtained. And for this service she had the hearty commendation of the United States Government!

Yes, it is true that when these facts were, most inconveniently made public, they caused quite a commotion. Promptly did Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, National Prohibition Director, broadcast a properly official "tut! tut!" But on the next air wave Andrew McCampbell, Prohibition Administrator for New York, announced that we mustn't take Col. Woodcock's "tut-tut's" too seriously. And to prove it, allowed another young woman, with an equally obliging thirst, to assist his agents in raiding the Surf Club. His explanation deserves a place amongst our Great American Classics.

"IT IS NECESSARY," says Mr. McCampbell, "FOR AGENTS AT TIMES TO TAKE GIRLS WITH THEM IN ORDER TO GAIN ENTRANCE TO SPEAKEASIES."

But not just ANY girl. No, indeedy! They must be NICE girls. Certified NICE girls. Never will your Uncle Samuel permit his picked agents to associate with, or his precious evidence to be consumed by, female rowdies.

"UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES WILL I PERMIT AN AGENT TO USE A WOMAN OF ILL REPUTE. THEY HAVE ORDERS ON THAT SCORE."

Now ain't that sumpin'! The girlie must be good or Uncle Sam won't pay her likker bill. But how long will the girlie be good AFTER she has consumed four or five quarts of evidence? And who'll be responsible for her damaged reputation when she's carried off the field of battle?

SHALL WE SHORTLY BE GIVING PENSIONS TO FEMMES WHO GET COCK-EYED FOR THE U. S. A.? A SORT OF CROIX DE SOUSE?

Swell idea, isn't it? Looks so nice in print. What a hit it will make with our posterity!

DOMINIQUE F. ARAGO

By Archibald Henderson

Dominique Francois Arago had one of the most singular trials undergone for the sake of science, of which history gives account. In recognition thereof, he was paid the unprecedented honor of election to the French Academy of Sciences at the age of 23, and furthermore was elected professor of analytical geometry and geodesy at the Ecole Polytechnique.

These honors were won in a curious way. Arago, at the age of 20, accompanied the famous scientist, Biot, to the Balearic Isles for the purpose of making a geodetic survey. Arago established himself on top of a high mountain and carried on his scientific observations by means of signals to his co-workers on the island, across 175 miles of water.

In the meantime war had been declared between France and Spain, and Arago was taken for a spy by the revoluntionary Majorcans, who were suspicious of his signaling operations. Disguised as a peasant, he affected his escape to Algiers, whence he embarked for Marseilles. The vessel in which he sailed was captured by a Spanish corsair, and he was thrown into prison, where he suffered both hardships and indignity. After his release, he once more embarked for home, but the vessel was driven by a storm on to the African shore, three days' journey from Algiers. He did not reach home until 1809, having set out from Paris three years earlier. It was in recognition of the sufferings he had undergone in the cause of science that he received the honors mentioned above.

Arago made a discovery of major importance in the field of magnetism, suggested to him by the work of Oersted on the deflection of the magnetic needle. Arago showed that the same effect as that secured by Oersted could be produced in an unmagnetized bar of soft iron or steel, and to a lesser degree but definitely, when a bar of copper, carrying no electrical current, was rotated around the magnet.

Arago was a masterly interpreter. His lectures on scientific subjects, especially astronomy, gave a genuine vogue to science, and aroused wide popular interest. Arago discovered many things of secondary importance in electro-magnetism, and is remembered for making the important discovery of the relation between the phenomenon of the aurora and terrestrial magnetism. He even discovered that light was undulatory. He died, a distinguished figure in the world of science, on October 2, 1853.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

When in the company of elderly people do you embarrass them by eating too rapidly when you all are at table?

Completing courses faster than they, do you make it evident that you are irritated by the waiting you have to do?

In trying to keep up with you they must neglect to masticate their food properly or must decline food they really wish to eat.

Too often they are made to feel that they are in the way or that they are a drawback to the rapid pace the younger people set.

They have learned by serious consequences the folly of eating too fast.

Time is not so important to the older ones at home and they can see no reason for rapid devouring of a meal.

The reason they must be so careful to eat slowly now may be due to swallowing half chewed food, just as you do now; they did it in younger years.
